Coast Baseball Heads Meet

DIRECTORS OF LEAGUE HOLD GATHERING

Walter Johnson Is Making Attempt to Purchase Pacific Franchise

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—What may prove one of the greatest "history-making" sessions in the annals of the organization got under way here today when President Harry Williams called the annual meeting of the directors of the Pacific Coast Baseball league. Three important announcements expected to mark the gathering were as follows:

1—Sale of the Vernon club by Ed Maier to H. William Lane, Salt Lake millionaire.

2—Purchase of Lane's Salt Lake City franchise by Chicago and Salt Lake interests.

3—The 1925 schedule.

While William Lane went so far today as to admit he might announce he had purchased the baseball club, declaring the deal was "as good as made," Walter Johnson of the Washington American was busy in conference with various club owners and he was expected to be determined to purchase a coast club.

Outlines Plans

Johnson, it was reported, was interested in a plan whereby he would become part owner of the Salt Lake club, which would be switched to Vancouver, B. C., or some large Pacific coast city. The reported sale of the Salt Lake franchise, however, was regarded as making this plan impossible of execution.

George Weiss, owner of the New Haven club of the Eastern league, accompanied Johnson and will be associated with him if Johnson is able to make a deal. Johnson, it was said, first sought to purchase Oakland. His second choice was given as Seattle, and his third as Sacramento, provided Lane had bought Vernon and there was no chance for him to get on the Tigers.

Money Not Paid

Lane declared the sale of his Salt Lake club had been made but he had not received the money as yet. He said he would go to San Francisco tomorrow to arrange for training quarters for the Salt Lake club and that the Bees would open the season with a game's play in Long Beach.

Charles Graham of the San Francisco club was active in opposing the plan advocated by Calvin Griffith of Cleveland limiting the number of players on each club to fifteen veterans and twelve rookies.

LAWSON IN HOSPITAL

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—Thomas W. Lawson, former multi-millionaire "copper king," whose financial adventures the whole world watched, was said at the Deaconess hospital today to be in no immediate danger. He has been seriously ill of diabetes.

Speed Demons Will Be Made Sign Painters

SAN JOSE, Jan. 12.—Speeders beware! Police Judge Percy O'Connor has a brand new cure for auto drivers who use city streets for speedways. His plan is to sentence speeders regardless of their position in society or business to become artists. He will give them a chance to exercise their artistic ability in repainting the white traffic signs on the streets as they become obliterated by traffic. "If the situation requires it will adopt this plan," he said today. "The sight of a few prominent Californians down on their knees painting white signs they often disregard will have a salutary effect."

Girl Wins $15,000 Home

MISS JULIA SUTHERLAND GROO of Portland, Ore., won the $15,000 home which was the first prize in a national essay contest. More than 1,000,000 school children submitted essays on the contest subject, "Home Lighting."

Name Directors For Merchants' Organization

The report of the nominating committee, rendered this noon at the regular weekly meeting of the Glendale Merchants' association, placed the following four members on the new board of directors, to serve with the three hold-over members: Lyman P. Clark, H. M. Butts, S. F. Bell and W. C. Winkler, in the order named, according to votes. The hold-over members who will serve with these men for the ensuing year are: O. Andresen, Charles F. Stuart and C. J. Hatz, retiring president, who presided over today's meeting.

Mr. Winkler is the only new member of the board, succeeding H. S. Webb, resigned. The others were re-elected. At a special meeting to be held between now and next Monday the board of directors will elect officers from their midst.

The report of the nominating committee, adoption of which placed these men in office, was rendered by V. E. White, chairman. It was accepted by unanimous vote. The meeting was held at the Egyptian Village cafe, 133 North Brand boulevard.

The association voted to meet next Monday noon with the Hollywood Credit association in joint session, at the Glen Ellen tea room, 1626 Cherokee avenue, Hollywood. This will take the place of the regular weekly meeting in Glendale.

Offer $1000 Reward For Sender of Bomb

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12—A reward of $1,000 was today posted by the Los Angeles County Bar association for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who sent a Christmas gift bomb to Ernest M. Torchia, of Glendale, prominent attorney, which exploded and maimed Torchia.

TWO MEN INJURED

ST. PAUL, Jan. 12.—Harvey Reed, Minneapolis, engineer, and Otto Gotfried, fireman, were injured, the former seriously, when a Chicago, St. Paul & Milwaukee switch engine plunged off a viaduct.

TWO KILLED IN LONG BEACH EXPLOSION

Sixteen Others Hurt When Boiler Blows Up at Edison Co. Plant

LONG BEACH, Cal., Jan. 12.—Two men were killed and sixteen others injured, several probably fatally, in a terrific explosion of a 12,000 horse power boiler in the new $10,000,000 steam plant of the Southern California Edison company here today.

The dead: Wayne L. Crammer, Long Beach; W. J. Polk, Watts.

It was a most tragic disaster which occurred when the big boiler, one of eight which had been installed recently in the plant, exploded at capacity pressure while being tested, according to company officials.

Scenes of the wildest confusion followed the blast and it was more than an hour before the dead and injured could be removed from the wrecked building. It was estimated damage to the plant would amount to many thousands of dollars.

Irish Free State Will Ask $100,000,000 Loan

DUBLIN, Jan. 12.—New York bankers will be asked to assist the Irish Free State to float a loan of $100,000,000, it was learned here today. The loan would bear interest at 5 per cent. Unlike the $50,000,000 loan floated last year, this issue would be placed in whole abroad.

TRIO SLIGHTLY HURT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12.—Three men were slightly injured when the California street cable car on which they were passengers collided with a trolley car at the intersection of California and Fillmore streets here today.

BUDGET TAKES LAWMAKERS' ATTENTION

$100,000,000 Estimated as Amount Required for Next Biennium

By GIL A. COWAN
For Southland News Service
Special to The Evening News.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 12.—The California Legislature today turns its attention to the biennial budget, the second of its kind, which is scheduled to be presented to the Assembly and Senate at 4 o'clock this afternoon by Governor Richardson, with his recommendations, which he and members of the Board of Control feel will meet all departmental needs.

Again the governor will leave but a mere million dollars for the Legislature to appropriate, it is stated, the budget calling for more than $100,000,000 expenditures. The budget will reveal the need for additional state revenue, progressive members of the Legislature declared today in discussing the situation.

Gross Revenue Tax

Assemblyman Van Bernard expresses the belief that publicly owned utilities should be included in the constitutional provisions taxing gross revenues of utilities corporations.

It is the contention of Senator Harris, who is an advocate of publicly-owned utilities paying taxes, that this leak in possible state revenues will become greater as public and private power development competes for business, inasmuch as intrastate railroad business has been materially affected by motor bus and truck, transportation, thus depleting potential sources.

To Ray L. Riley, state controller, is credited the statement that "fixed charges authorized by the constitution and recurrent legislative appropriation will equal the state revenue in 1943, if present proportionate increases prevail."

"This hypothesis may not be correct," Senator Harris said, "but it reveals the necessity for constructive taxation legislation."

George Squires has been advanced from the insurance department to the State Railroad commission. Charles Detrict is said to have the inside edge on the former job.

Ezra Decota of Oakland was also named to the railroad board,

GOVERNOR OF KANSAS, SON ARRESTED

Conspiracy, Accepting Bribe Are Charged In Prison Pardon Scandal

By CHARLES LEAVILLE
For International News Service.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 12.—Governor Jonathan M. Davis and his son Russell were formally placed under arrest shortly before noon today when the warrants charging bribery in connection with the alleged sale of pardons were served. They gave bond immediately and then proceeded under technical custody to the inaugural ceremonies for Governor Davis, successor.

Governor Davis and his son were charged in informations in city court this morning, filed by Tinkham Veale, county attorney of Shawnee county, with "conspiracy and accepting a bribe," in connection with alleged sales of pardons in Kansas.

Says Big Mistake

"They are making a big mistake and a mighty bad move," was the only comment of Governor Davis, regarding the charges.

The informations and warrants were prepared last night after an all day conference between Tinkham Veale, Attorney-General Griffiths, witnesses to the alleged bribery, and Paul N. Heintz, judge of the city court in which the information was filed. Heintz, at noon today, succeeds Veale as prosecuting attorney of Shawnee county, but Veale and his assistant, Paul H. Gaw, have been retained by the state as special prosecutors in the action against the governor and his son.

It was at first planned to make the charge "soliciting and accepting a bribe" until it was found that there is no penalty under

BANDITS GET $25,000 AT KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 12.—Between thirty-five and fifty customers and employes of the Community State bank were held up today by four masked bandits. The bandits robbed the customers, seized the money in the cages and escaped. The amount of the loot is placed at $25,000. The bank is a suburban institution.

PRESIDENT UNDECIDED ON BRITISH ENVOY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The successor to Frank B. Kellogg as ambassador to Great Britain will be either Alanson B. Houghton, now ambassador to Germany, or Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, who retires from the Senate on March 4, it was learned here today on reliable authority. President Coolidge was said to have made no final choice between the two.

Named To Supreme Court

This is the latest photo of HARLAN F. STONE, attorney-general of the United States, who has been nominated as associate justice of the supreme court. Charles Beecher Warren of Michigan, former ambassador to Japan, is slated to become attorney-general.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The Senate judiciary committee today again held up approval of the appointment of Attorney-General Harlan F. Stone to the United States supreme court because of charges of "unprofessional conduct" filed against him by Colonel James A. Owenby, mining operator of Colorado.

Owenby charged Stone was guilty of unprofessional conduct while representing J. P. Morgan & Co. in litigation against him. Owenby filed a record showing Stone's connection with Morgan and a complaint against elevation to the supreme bench of the attorney-general.

Hundred Homeless as Fire Destroys Houses

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Jan. 12.—One hundred persons were homeless today and police were seeking a pyromaniac, following a series of fires which destroyed three dwellings within a few blocks of each other. Hundreds were driven to the windswept streets in night attire. Police agreed the fires were of suspicious origin. They said that, so far as they knew, no one had been injured.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Nelson Morris, C. M. McFarlane, L. H. Heymann and H. A. Timmons of the "Big Five" packers of Chicago, today filed a petition in the district supreme court for an extension of one year in which to dispose of the balance of their prohibited holdings in enterprises not allied with the meat and packing industries.

15-Months-Old Baby Victim of House Fire

SEATTLE, Jan. 12.—The 15-month-old baby of Gus Ertsen, a longshoreman, was burned to death shortly before noon today and a second baby, Ollie, two and a half years old, is dying at the city hospital of burns suffered when the family home caught fire during the mother's absence.

REPORTED KILLED

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Private messages received this afternoon in Broadway brokerage houses said that J. William Souther, Wall street operator and husband of Georgette Cohan, daughter of George M. Cohan, the actor, had died in Rawlins, Wyo., from injuries suffered in a fall from a horse.

FIX AWARD TO AMERICA ON DAWES PLAN

United States to Receive 2¼ Per cent In Payment Of War Claims

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The agreement entered into at Paris, whereby the United States is to receive 2¼ per cent of the Dawes annuities in satisfaction of her war claims against Germany, has been "accepted in principle" by this government, it was learned officially today.

The details of the agreement are not known here but the state department announced that the "general structure" of the agreement had been approved. Final approval will await the completion of details.

By FRANK E. MASON
For International News Service

PARIS, Jan. 12.—It was learned from British sources today that the United States will be awarded 2¼ per cent of the Dawes receipts from Germany in payment of America's war claims of $350,000,000.

America's 2¼ per cent will continue as long as the Dawes plan is operative, it was said. In no case, however, would America be paid more than 45,000,000 gold marks toward its war claims in any one year.

The army of occupation costs would be payable at the rate of 52,000,000 gold marks annually, beginning in September, 1926, but with the time reckoned from September, 1923. The American reparations would be reckoned from September, 1924.

Want Debt Reduced

On the other hand, France is still hopeful that the United States will materially reduce the Franco-American debt, it was indicated today by an article in the well-informed financial paper, L'Information. This publication

AUTOMOBILE DEPARTMENT INSPECTOR ACCUSED

Murder of Bootlegger 'King' Connects Official With Activities, Is Claim

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 12.—Sweeping investigation into charges that F. T. Zimmerman, inspector of the state motor vehicle department, was linked in rum-running activities of William Keefe, alias George Turner, slain "king of the bootleggers" of Southern California, was launched today by Will H. Marsh, chief of the motor vehicle department.

Marsh announced that he had dispatched C. K. Harder, chief inspector of the highway patrol, and E. L. Bruck of the Los Angeles branch of the department to Santa Barbara to Question Zimmerman and obtain any evidence which authorities of the southern city may have against him.

The state probe was launched after Marsh had been notified that on the body of the slain rum-runner, who was killed by Irving Denton, high jacker, was found the following note:

"To state traffic officers—The bearer, George Turner, is a personal friend of mine and any courtesy you can extend will be appreciated and returned by me.

"F. T. ZIMMERMAN,
"Inspector."

Marsh declared that if Zimmerman wrote the note he would be discharged.

The motor vehicle chief denied that any other members of the highway patrol had been connected with bootlegging activities by the authorities.

Prohibition Director to Investigate New Charges

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—Samuel F. Rutter of San Francisco, prohibition director of California, was scheduled to arrive here today to assist Los Angeles officers in investigating sensational revelations brought to light as an aftermath of the murder of William Keefe, known under the name of William Turner as California's "king of bootleggers," "who was shot to death last week in a lonely grove near Santa Barbara.

According to Los Angeles officers the investigation was to be made around these three angles:

1 That a nation-wide counterfeiting plot in which bootleggers and rum-runners, including Turner, had been defrauded of fortunes by being paid for liquors in fake bank notes.

2 That the heads of government secret service and prohibition departments had been threatened with death if they did not cease activities in investigating the counterfeiters.

3 That letters found on Turner's body revealed he had been shown special consideration by state highway officials.

A special investigation it was said, will be conducted regarding reports that Turner was given "protection" by highway officials in moving his cargoes of liquor.

Changes Being Made In State's Enforcement Forces

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Prohibition changes in enforcement circles are being quietly made in California, it was learned definitely here today.

Samuel Rutter, present state director, is to become permanent divisional director in that district and W. W. Anderson enforcement director. Anderson recently was shifted from Chicago to Los Angeles.

National Enforcement Director E. C. Yellowly, now en route to the coast, is understood to have been delegated the task of smoothing out the situation.

He is said to be carrying credentials for Police Captain Charles Goff of San Francisco in the hopes of prevailing upon him to accept a post in the enforcement division at least for a time. Goff is understood to have been displeased by the fact that Anderson is slated to become enforcement chief, having understood that he was to occupy that position.

AUTO MAKERS FEAR ONLY OPTIMISM

This Is Consensus of Opinion With Heavy Bookings At N. Y. Show

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The greatest danger to the automobile industry today lies with over optimism. That is the consensus of opinion of executives of leading companies here for the New York automobile show now in progress. Bookings of business at the show already have been heavy but the feeling that the industry is entering the coming year under better conditions than have obtained for some years is based more especially on sales in October, November and December.

Primarily the New York automobile show is not a sales show. Rather it is an Easter parade of the automobile styles and a meeting place where manufacturer and dealer can meet, give mutual information on conditions and the trend of business and come to a better understanding. The information that the dealers are giving the manufacturers this year is even more encouraging than the recent sales by companies which have placed new models on the market.

All agree that the point of saturation in America still is as far off as the end of the rainbow. Until there is an automobile for every other person, that point will not be approached, according to one manufacturer. The coming year will see at least two million cars bought for replacement purposes. The volume of prospective new customers seems likely to exceed 1,700,000.

Danger in Optimism

But—and this is the danger of over optimism—if manufacturers load themselves and their dealers up with a huge volume of cars which won't move into the hands of customers, disaster is sure to result. That mistake was made in the first three months of 1924 and the necessity of liquidating accumulated stocks of unsold cars throughout the remainder of the year cost some companies millions which might have been saved if the output had been kept close to consumer demand.

The more prominent manufacturers have sworn a solemn oath not to make that mistake again and there is little likelihood they will do so, but the dealer who "bites off more than he can chew" is also likely to be a victim of over optimism. Nevertheless the production schedules of most of the prominent companies are materially larger now than they have been in recent months. The Hudson Motor Car Company's January schedule is higher than for any month of 1924 when record business was done. This month's production has been set 17,600 cars. It is the plan to shove this up to 18,700 in February and 20,400 in March.

Deliveries Stable

For the last three months deliveries of automobiles to consumers have been at a fairly stable level, according to General Motors officials. Whole deliveries to consumers by this company were at the rate of 620,000 vehicles a year in the early winter, while factory sales were only at the rate of 297,000. The reverse was true a year ago when dealers were loading themselves up in anticipation of a spring demand which did not eventuate.

The Ford company has resumed operations after inventory at the rate of 150,000 cars and trucks a month, and pay rolls at other Detroit factories undoubtedly will show a steady increase for the next few weeks. Arrangements have been made to finance dealers on a more stable basis this year and the volume of used cars on hand while still a problem, is much nearer solution than at any time in the last six months.

The alleged danger to business conditions and individuals from the heavy buying of automobiles on the partial payment plan has been pretty thoroughly discounted.

Move to Reduction

While such transactions will continue heavy it is probable that initial payments will be larger and time of payments somewhat less in most sections of the country.

One notable trend in the New York show is the move toward reducing the cost of closed vehicles closer to that of the open models. Price advances and price reductions both have been made by some companies but these have sufficed rather to take the product into a different price field than to market any definite trend in costs in production. Undoubtedly considerable stimulus is anticipated from the announcement of certain new engine and body models. Makers of four cylinder cars have ventured into the field of straight eights; and makers of eights have turned out some six cylinder models but in general the moves have been in the nature of refinements rather than in changes of engineering principles.

Oakmont Golfer Joins Hole-In-One Members

Thomas D. Meddick, member Oakmont Country club, is the second member of the club to make a hole-in-one shot over club links. Ray McCleskey holds the honors for making the first hole-in-one shot. The Oakmont Country club golf team, captained by Mr. Meddick, defeated the Palos Verdes team when they met last week.

ATWATER IS SCENE OF JOINT MEETING

Representatives of Six Improvement Associations to Gather in Near Future to Consider Program

Matters of great importance to every part of the district they represent will be taken up at a joint meeting of the Atwater Community, Greater Santa Monica Boulevard, East Hollywood, Glendale Boulevard, Edendale and Highland Park improvement associations, scheduled for some time during the latter part of this week or the early part of next.

The exact time and place of the big joint session of the improvement associations will be announced through these columns later. Proposal of a bond issue to cover the expense of three bridges, to be constructed at Glendale boulevard, Greater Santa Monica boulevard and Ivanhoe road, across the Los Angeles river, will be made at the meeting. The improvement bodies will urge that the bond issue be placed on the ballot at the time of the general election in May.

Other matters which will be taken up at the joint session will be the proposed high school for the Ivanhoe district, the new ward City Council system, and the naming of the new Los Angeles city playground on Los Feliz road. Officials of the associations directed a request for an Ivanhoe high school to the Los Angeles Board of Education some time ago. At that time a confident spirit prevailed that the request would be granted. No action has been taken by the school board to date, however. Further action in urging the establishment of the school will be discussed at the meeting.

The associations will also endeavor to have a number of traffic police detailed to the Ivanhoe district during the rush hours on Sunday. Traffic jams which have occurred during the past several months have resulted seriously on several occasions and have caused much confusion, it is declared. Installation of a wig-wag signal at the crossing of Glenhurst avenue and Glendale boulevard will also be sought.

Is Recovering at Beach

Mrs. Arthur M. Gillman, 3448 Larga avenue, is at the Gillman beach cottage, recovering from her recent illness. Mrs. Gillman was taken sick at Thanksgiving time, but is rapidly regaining her strength.

Locating In Atwater

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Drake, formerly of San Francisco, have taken an apartment at 3216½ Glendale boulevard, Atwater Park, and will make their permanent home there.

Returns From Hospital

Mrs. Arthur L. Sinclair, 3419 Garden avenue, and William Donald Sinclair, only several weeks old, have returned home from the hospital.

P.-T. A. Meeting Tuesday

All women of the Atwater district have been invited to attend the meeting of the Atwater Parent-Teacher association tomorrow afternoon at the school. Luncheon will be served at 2:15 o'clock for friends of the association and pupils of the school. Following the business session Miss Helen Graham, of Los Angeles, will talk on "The Home of Today and Tomorrow." A cordial invitation to all women of the district to be present is extended by Mrs. E. V. Bacon, president of the P. T. A.

This week and next will be busy ones for local Parent-Teacher association leaders, for in addition to the meeting Wednesday afternoon of the Glendale Federation, P.-T. A., there will be a state board meeting tomorrow, a district board meeting Thursday, and a week from Thursday a district conference.

Mrs. O. H. Spradling, president of Glendale Federation, announces the Wednesday afternoon meeting for 2:15 o'clock at Harvard High school. Paramount in the minds of members are ways and means for augmenting the Federation treasury. This matter will be thoroughly discussed on Wednesday. Mrs. Spradling has asked all presidents to bring reports, which she will incorporate in her report for the district board meeting Thursday. Mrs. Spradling and Mrs. John Robert White, Jr., will attend the state board meeting tomorrow, and will doubtless give a report of the session at the Federation meeting Wednesday.

As usual Glendale will be represented at the meeting Thursday of the First District board in Los Angeles. Glendale will also send a large delegation to the First District conference, Thursday, January 22 at Alhambra. Glendale women of prominence in P.-T. A. affairs will appear on the program. Mrs. Hugh K. Bradford, state president, will be in attendance at the conference.

"Fathers' Night" was observed by the Colorado Parent-Teacher association Friday night at the school. The program was presented by pupils of Miss Muriel Wilson's and Miss Louise Sambrough's rooms. Children taking part were: Alice Leighton, Evan Sibert, Connor Cole, Claraemma Gufick, Mary Dotson, Martelle McKee, Frank Bishop, Octoban Krebs, Willard Leeds, Helen Robinson, Charles Lund, Crystal Wilson, Clifford Guenther, Doris Crosson, Marjory Gilbert, Thelma White, Helen Jenson, Frances Ashbey, Jane Leighton, Phyllis Piland, Patsy O'Connor, Twylla McBroom, Randolph Bennett and Ruth Reed. John T. Cate, business manager of city schools spoke on the bond election to be held February 12. Mrs. Frank W. Parr, president of the association and L. C. Leeds, president of the Fathers' auxiliary, gave short talks. Children were given popcorn balls by the association.

Mothers of high school students living in the southern part of Glendale are to have a meeting Wednesday afternoon at an informal social affair at the home of Mrs. S. L. Martinez, 1023 South Mariposa street. It will be a radio tea from 12 to 3 o'clock.

Glendalian Arrested For Annoying Women

John B. Morris of 641 North Brand boulevard, arrested Saturday afternoon by officers of the Glendale police department, on suspicion of annoying women, was held at police headquarters over Sunday without bail, and today was turned over to Constable John C. Scales of Burbank township. The offense with which Morris is charged is said to have occurred at Brand boulevard and Stocker street, which lies in Casa Verdugo, outside of the Glendale city limits.

LITTLE PLAYERS TO RESUME WORK

Gabriel Ravanelle to Lead Rehearsals Each Week During Winter

The Little Theatre Players of Glendale Community Service will resume their work after the holidays with a special series of drama study and play-producing classes, which will begin Thursday night, under the direction of Gabriel Ravanelle, widely-known leader in dramatic work.

Mr. Ravanelle, who came to Pasadena recently after eleven years of varied experience as director, play-producer and actor in eastern cities, first took part in Glendale activities when he directed the presentation of "Eager Heart" on Christmas eve.

A large group from the Players' organization has made arrangements to join the class, which will meet at 7:30 o'clock, Thursday night in the Glendale avenue school house, corner of Glendale and Acacia avenues. The class will be conducted upstairs the first week, as the weekly community sing will be held in the Glendale avenue building on that date.

Later in the season Mr. Ravanelle is planning to direct the production of several plays in which members of the Little Theatre Players will take part.

Persons interested in joining the Little Theatre Players' class may make arrangements through R. Ernest Tucker, superintendent of recreation, in his office in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, 150 South Brand boulevard. Telephone, Glendale 3070.

WOMAN'S PART IN LIFE OF CHRIST

Dr. Ferris Gives Second Of Series of Sermons On Son of God

Dr. Lincoln A. Ferris spoke Sunday morning at First Methodist church on "What Can a Woman Do?" For this sermon, which was the second of a series, the speaker took his text from the story of Mary's washing the feet of Jesus. He said:

"The ointment was worth about $50. I did not know that a woman could do a thing with $50 that would make the name of Jesus heralded and make it deathless, eternal and divine.

"Of course she loved Him, and wanted to do this thing. She wanted to show the devotion of her soul for the Master's. Hadn't he brought back her brother, Lazarus from the dead? Hadn't he circled them round about with the love of the home restored?

"Jesus Christ knows how to receive even the little, if in that little there be the absolute abandon of love and devotion to the Christ. After all it's the love and affection and devotion of the soul that makes it possible for Jesus to receive.

Widow's Mite

"Remember the widow's mite. Jesus heard the clink of those two small coins. You think it was only a paltry trifle, but Jesus counted it more than all the rest. Since that day folks have been inspired to put millions at the feet of Jesus because they have caught something of the wonderful love of the widowed woman, whose mite she slipped that day in among the gold gifts. Wrapped with faith, wrapped with love, wrapped with God, it becomes the thrilling and inspiring and immortal act of the whole of the giving of womanhood.

"It was a part of the plan of the living God that the American women should take the wonderful part that they are engaged in today all over the world."

Evening service was featured by "The Legal Limit" as sermon, the second of "Four Hours with Christ," being spent at the Sunday evening services in a study of Christ's Sermon on the Mount. A week ago the subject was "Christ and the Kingdom." The subject for the third hour's study, January 18, will be "Remember the Moth" and for the fourth hour's study, January 25, "Christ's Call to the Kingdom." At the night service Dr. Ferris said:

Sermon on Mount

"In all the singing of the world, in all the utterances on earth, there is no single utterance like this Sermon on the Mount. The theme of the sermon is the righteousness of the Kingdom of Heaven.

"The laws of man deal with the thing after the blow has been struck. Then it is too late. The damage has been done. Christ raises the law before the damage has been done. He says that if you think the thought you are already guilty of the thing. Christ lifts the law into the realm of the soul. The law never straightens anything. It is like a tri-square. It shows where the plane needs to go, where the straightening is needed. Jesus gives us the prompting of our own hearts to do the straightening out in our lives."

Oakland Nurseryman Added to Local Staff

Edward J. Waterhouse of Oakland has been added to the staff of Brand Boulevard nursery, 421 North Brand boulevard, and will specialize in the planting and arranging of grounds for Southern California home builders.

Mr. Waterhouse is a graduate of both the University of California and Oregon State Agricultural college, where he studied landscape gardening. After graduating in 1923 from the latter college, he was associated with the California nursery, said to be the largest nursery company in California. Mr. Waterhouse's experience has been largely in the planting of home and public grounds so that they conform in beauty and good taste with the architecture of the buildings.

Brotherhood Banquet Set for Friday Night

The Brotherhood banquet and entertainment to be held next Friday evening in the social hall of the First M. E. church of Glendale, originally announced as for men only, will also be attended by the women folk of all the churches associated in the union revival meetings which start in the tabernacle now being erected on North Kenwood street near Broadway, under the leadership of John Brown, the evangelist. Tables will be set for five hundred. Speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Stewart P. McLennan of the First Presbyterian church of Hollywood, who will talk on the subject of "The Universal Need of the Christ Spirit in All the Affairs of Life." Women preparing the banquet urge that the reservation cards passed out in all the evangelical churches yesterday be returned as indicated on the card not later than Tuesday evening or Wednesday morning.

Wilson School Plans Gay Carnival Friday

"A-8 Carnival, January 16," is the theme that is being broadcasted by the students of Wilson Intermediate school. Posters depicting "The Two-Headed Lady," "Mrs. Bluebeard" and other exciting attractions line the halls of the school, and a zoo containing real and otherwise animals has been guaranteed. A variety of numbers scheduled to equal any performance of its kind will make up the program that will be a part of the day's jollification.

Miss Lucretia Potter, Miss Helen Gould and Miss Lois Hanna, the A-8 class teachers are being assisted in the preparations by Miss Ada Sallstrom, Miss Pearl Hebster, Mrs. Ettarae Kent and others. Almost every student in the three outgoing classes will take some part in the carnival or appear on the program. The ticket sale opened Friday and there will be a spirited contest between classes for honors in brining in the most money. The proceeds of the affair will be devoted to the class gift to the school.

FIRE FIGHTERS PREPARE FOR PROTECTION

New Firebreaks Being Built In Nearby Hills, Says Chief Hayselden

Three camps are now established in the Angeles forest north of Glendale, building firebreaks, reports Chief P. J. Hayselden of the Glendale unit, Angeles Forest Protective association. Funds for this work are provided by $50,000 appropriation recently made by the Los Angeles county Board of Supervisors, following an appeal for aid from Stuart Flintham, county forester.

Forester Flintham had previously appeared before the Board of Review assembled in Los Angeles late in 1924, to consider the causes of last summer's serious fires in the Angeles forest, and he had presented what Chief Hayselden declares is a comprehensive plan for protecting Los Angeles county against forest fire menace.

The Board of Review comprised: E. A. Sherman, associate United States forester, chairman; and F. C. Pooley, United States district forester; Evan Kelly, chief of operations; United States forestry bureau; H. S. Gilman of San Dimas, new president of the Angeles Forest Protective association; and C. G. Dunwoody of Pasadena, retiring president of the association.

Endorse Plan

These men were in deliberation for weeks, Chief Hayselden states, and they finally endorsed Forester Flintham's plan as the most feasible submitted. It was then that the forester appeared before the Board of Supervisors with the request that they adopt his plan. This they did, appropriating $50,000 which is now being spent in safeguarding the forests of Los Angeles county from future fires.

It is hoped to get state and federal aid later. Chief Hayselden states. Meanwhile the burden of protection is on the county, and the county fire fighters. The part of the Angeles forest where work is now under way lies north of Tujunga, and is partly in Tujunga.

The Glendale unit of the Angeles Forest Protective association will be strengthened with additional men, Chief Hayselden states, and will put in new firebreaks, clear off brush and in every way possible co-operate with Forester Flintham and the Board of Supervisors in making the Glendale district fireproof.

Patrol to Start

As early in the spring as the hills begin to dry out, the patrol system will again be in operation. Last summer this system was responsible for putting out a number of embryo fires and preventing a large number from starting, Chief Hayselden states. There were five men regularly on patrol duty, with an organization of eleven crews and 125 trained men back of them, while in an emergency, 300 men could have been placed in the field.

The new system of firebreaks to be put in by the Glendale unit of the Angeles Forest Protective association will run up through the Verdugo hills, according to Chief Hayselden, following the Burbank extension to La Crescenta, while new firebreaks will be put in along the hills of the Verdugo canyon, where a costly fire raged two summers ago.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

How little we know, we earthly humans, with all our vaunted progress which includes the mastery of the air and the oceans and the rivers—

How little we know was well illustrated by a speaker recently who told of a classroom incident while he was in college. The teacher of logic was harassed by one student, who may be called Miller, for convenience. Miller was always glad to express his knowledge and question that of the professor. Finally, the latter erased everything from a large blackboard, sharpened the chalk to a fine point and drew the smallest and shortest line possible.

"The blackboard," he told the class, "represents the sum total of human knowledge. The line I have just drawn represents what I know. Will Mr. Miller please draw a line representing what he knows?"

Nevertheless, logic causes people to believe what is true in one instance may be true in others. And by compounding similar incidents one arrives at fairly definite conclusions as to a state of affairs.

Governor Richardson has been administering an economy form of government for two years now. There is no doubt but what his attitude toward the various departments has had a healthy effect.

But the writer honestly believes the governor should enforce his honest views by advocating some better system of producing state revenue. It is a joke to believe the corporations pay taxes sufficient to maintain state government, or at least they are not paying enough to maintain the institutions as they should be.

This is no fault of the corporate interests. Like the individual they pay only that which they are forced to pay—and no more. Tax dodging has become the popular pastime of everyone since the federal government proceeded to make America pay for winning the war, it would seem, from the delays in negotiations with debtor nations.

Not only should the state progress in methods of taxation, but the federal government should consider ways and means of making its various departments self-supporting insofar as possible, not to mention paying departmental employes a living wage, with particular reference at the present time to postal clerks and carriers.

Niggardly government is not efficient government. Thankfully, Governor Richardson appears favorable to commensurate salaries. He does protest against inefficiency and extravagance.

Business men who complain of high taxes have no one but themselves to blame for they are more or less responsible in promoting the candidacy of legislative representatives, who in the last analysis, serve as an ex-officio board of directors in the business organization of government.

The California Legislature this year has some mighty fine business men and lawyers in its ranks. It also has the usual number of poor excuses. It is charity not to single them out for attack. They are unwitting victims of an unthinking electorate, which might be compared to the stockholders of a corporation.

Most officials are sincere. Many are ignorant and incompetent. some are presumptuous. Others have theories which are impractical in application. And a few, through experiences of one sort or another, have become lop-sided in their views, to use understandable English.

To find the ideal office holder is like searching for a needle in a haystack. This writer expects to see the day, however, when a candidate for office will have to meet certain standards of qualification or the office be declared vacant until such a man or woman is found.

ORGANIZATION CELEBRATES FOUNDING

Members of College Club at Anniversary Gathering Endorse Bonds

Glendale College club members celebrated the second anniversary of the founding of the organization, Saturday, by unanimously going on record as favoring the school bond issue, to come before Glendale voters February 10.

Another feature of the birthday meeting was the announcement that the American Association of University Women, of which the Glendale club is a branch, is participating in the conference in Washington, D. C., January 18 to 24 on the cause and cure of war. The A. A. U. W. is one of six national associations striving for world peace.

The noon luncheon enjoyed by club members and guests was a real birthday party. Orange and white, club colors, dominated the decoration. On the honor table was a birthday cake, which was cut by Mrs. A. L. Ferguson, the first president of the club. On the smaller tables, at which six or eight people were seated, the centerpiece was a white candle in an orange floral holder. White doilies at the places were ruffled with orange crepe paper. There were over fifty women present for the luncheon.

Mrs. Parr Presides

Mrs. Frank W. Farr, club president, presided. After reading the names of charter members, she called on Mrs. Ferguson, past president and first president of the club, who responded with a few words on the place of a college club in the community; and Mrs. Charles Barker, who was first vice-president of the club, who enumerated what the club has to be thankful for.

Decision was made to buy name buttons for all club members, similar to the buttons worn by members of the service clubs at their luncheons.

Dr. Mildred Struble of the University of Southern California, was the speaker of the afternoon, on "Modern Drama." Dr. Struble gave a scholarly talk on the trend of modern drama. She declared this to be a changing age, but a period of prolific production of drama. However, she stated that few of the dramas produced, stand out prominently.

Discusses Drama

"Modern drama, with few exceptions, champions the cause of the underdog," she said. "The main character is usually suppressed by social conditions, and the aim is to arouse the audience to a point of desire for eradicating this evil. Eighty per cent of modern plays must have a purpose.

"People are tired of movies," she said, "and there is a decided reaction to the legitimate stage Drama is going to improve and I predict something unprecedented in the future."

Welcome Mrs. Reichard

One of the pleasures of the meeting was the unexpected arrival of Mrs. Ada Reichard from her home in Carlsbad. Mrs. Reichard was a founder of the club and a member of the directing board last year.

The next club meeting will be held the second Saturday in February, when a book review program will be given. Club members will be notified of all future meetings by postal card announcement.

Income Tax Problems Are Solved By Expert

Questions regarding amount of income tax to be paid for the year 1924 under the federal statutes are answered in this column by Rex B. Goodcell, Collector of Internal Revenue, in charge of the Los Angeles district. Similar questions and answers will appear from time to time in The Glendale Evening News.

Rex B. Goodcell, collector of internal revenue, and in charge of the Los Angeles district, has prepared for The Glendale Evening News a list of questions and answers pertaining to the payment and amount of the income tax on incomes for 1924. Other questions and answers will appear in the columns of The Glendale Evening News later. Today's list follows:

I am a single man and earned in wages $1,000 during 1924. Do I have to file a return and what form must I use?

You must file, using Form 1040 A, although you have no tax to pay.

I am a married man and have two dependent children. My salary in 1924 was $2,400 and my only other income was $110, interest received from a note. My real estate taxes were $90. Must I file a return?

You will not have to file a return, because your net income was less than $2,500.

I am a stenographer, unmarried. My salary was $1,700 and I received rents on properties I own, amounting to $1,100. In computing my tax am I entitled to the 25 per cent credit for earned income on both the $1,700 salary and the $1,100 in rents, or only on the salary?

You are entitled to the 25 per cent credit on your entire income, as all income up to $5,000 is considered earned income. You must file on Form 1040, however.

Part of my income is from salary and about $2,000 of it from rents. What form must I use?

You must use Form 1040. Form 1040 A is used for earned net incomes of not more than $5,000, derived principally from salaries and wages and Form 1040 for net income of more than $5,000 or net incomes, regardless of amount, derived from a profession or business, including farming. Where income from rents or royalties is received Form 1040 must be used.

My net income was $2,500. I am married and living with my wife. Must I file?

You must file. All married couples living together must file return if their net income was $2,500 or more. Your return, however, will be nontaxable.

I am married but separated from my wife on August 31, 1924. Both of us are wage earners. Do we file separate returns and what personal exemption are we entitled to?

You are entitled to the married exemption of $2,500 up to August 31, or eight months, which is $1,666, which must be divided between your wife and you. For the last four months of the year your wife and you are classed as single persons, for which the annual exemption of each is $1,000. This four months would entitle each to an exemption of $333. The entire exemption of each of you would therefore be $1,166. If the net income of either husband or wife, living apart, was $1,000, each must file a return.

May I use Form 1040 A if my income, chiefly derived from wages, included interest received?

Yes. But if rents enter into your income use Form 1040.

I am a saleswoman, unmarried, and keep house and support my mother, who lives with me and who is physically incapable. She has an income of $300. My salary is $2,100. Must I file a return and what personal exemption am I entitled to?

You must file a return as you are unmarried and your income was $1,000 or more. You are entitled to a personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a household and $400 for a dependent, your mother, but you must include in your return the $300 income your mother received, if you claim the $400 exemption on her account.

We are four sisters living together and supporting our mother who is physically incapable and who lives with us. Our salaries range from $1,100 to $1,400 each. Must we file returns and may each of us claim the $2,500 exemption as the head of the household?

Each sister must file a return if her net income was $1,000 or more. There can be only one head of your household. One of the sisters who assumes the moral and legal responsibility for the direction of the household, but only one of them, may claim the $2,500 exemption on this account and also a further exemption of $400 for the mother. The Internal Revenue Bureau is now investigating numerous returns made last year in which two persons from the same household claimed the $2,500 exemption as its head.

My salary for 1924 was $7,000. I am living with my wife. Additional income was $3,000 from rents and interest. I have no legal deductions to make. How do you figure my tax?

You must use Form 1040. Your net income was $10,000 less $2,500 personal exemption, leaving $7,500 taxable. First $4,000 at 2 per cent equals $80; next $3,500 at 4 per cent, $140, a total tax of $220. Your earned income was $7,000 less personal exemption of $2,500 equals $4,500, of which amount $4,000 at 2 per cent is $80 and $500 at 4 per cent is $20, a total of $100. Your 25 per cent earned income deduction on this $100 is $25. Subtract this $25 from your net income tax of $220, which gives you a net tax due the government of $195.

During 1924 I earned $1,600 in wages. Am single. My union dues were $60. What is my tax?

Use Form 1040 A. $1,600 less $60 equals $1,540 net income. Deduct $1,000 personal exemption leaving amount taxable $540. Tax at 2 per cent on $540 equals $10.80. On this $10.80 you may deduct 25 per cent on account of earned income equals $2.70, leaving a tax due of $8.10.

When must I file my return?

Do it today. Hundreds of taxpayers, who do not understand the income laws are failing to take advantage of the 25 per cent reduction on earned income. Call at the Revenue office at once and let a deputy assist you in preparing your return. During the February and March rush, it will be almost impossible to furnish individual service to taxpayers. File during January.

REPORT GLENDALE MAN FINDS MINE

Silver Deposits Uncovered By M. B. Martin During Tour of Mexico

Reports from Sonora, Mexico, tell of the success of M. B. Martin, formerly a Glendale real estate broker, who, it is said, went into Mexico nine months ago with approximately $2000 in cash, and now has sufficient to make him independent for life.

His property in Mexico includes seventy-five acres, situated fifty-seven miles from the railroad, nine miles south and east of Matape, which is the nearest town, and almost seventy miles due east from Hermosillo, the capital city of the state of Sonora.

Mr. Martin is said to have traveled into Mexico as a prospector, seeking fortune. Late spring and summer were spent in a tour of close scrutiny, wandering with burro pack and native guide. When almost discouraged, and about to come back to the States, early in August Fate favored him, for he found a property possessed of tremendous metallurgical importance, a precious mineralization without a near parallel in more recent mining times. It is said to be a genuine strike of vast proportions, its consequential earning power running into many millions.

Wilson School Forms Class In Agriculture

Enrollment of a class in California agriculture, scheduled by the department of community service of the University of Southern California to be held at the Wilson Intermediate school in Glendale, is now open. The class meets at 7 p. m. on Tuesday, January 13, for a period of 12 weeks, and grants university credit. Under the direction of Marie A. Larkey, instruction will be given in soils, climate, water and factors in farming, etc., in California.

To provide especially for teachers and students who could not go to the Los Angeles colleges during school hours, this class, in addition to a Thursday night class in public education in the United States, meeting in the same place, was organized by U. S. C. Those who wish to benefit by this course may enroll on Tuesday evening, at 7 o'clock, at the Wilson Intermediate school.

Noted Writer to Talk At Women's Club Meet

Paul Harvey, noted writer and speaker on international subjects, who was featured prominently as one of the speakers in June at the biennial of the General Federation of Women's clubs in Los Angeles, will be a speaker tomorrow at the Tuesday Afternoon club luncheon. Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, club president, received word this morning from Mr. Harvey that he would accept the engagement, and she urges as many club members as possible to hear him.

Cars Turn Turtle In Sunday Morning Crash

A spectacular automobile accident occurred at Colorado boulevard and Sycamore Canyon road yesterday morning, when two cars overturned following a collision. No one was seriously injured, according to information received by the Glendale police department, although two of the occupants, Mrs. L. B. P. Kingsbury and Mrs. L. J. Kingsbury, both of Los Angeles, were scratched about the face. One car was driven by L. B. P. Kingsbury of Los Angeles, it was reported, the other being driven by L. J. Gantz, also of Los Angeles. Both machines were damaged.

BRIEF SESSION AT CAPITOL IS HINTED

First Week at Sacramento Indicates Business-Like Intentions

By GIL A. COWAN
For Southland News Service
Special to The Evening News.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 12.—Showing signs of a brief and business-like session, the California Legislature completed its first week with Speaker Frank F. Merriam in the Assembly predicting adjournment as eary as January 23. A month's recess will follow in which period the solons will report to their constituents before the final two months of the biennial meeting of lawmakers here.

Of the week's work, the most outstanding event was the ratification of the federal child labor amendment. This resolution, which passed by an overwhelming vote in both houses, was fostered by the administration and introduced in the Assembly by Frank C. Weller of Glendale.

In the Senate forty-four bills and ten resolutions were presented, most important of which bill was No. 37 enacting a seven per cent valuation on the face value of foreign securities and solvent credits which its proponents declare will bring forth on the tax rolls several billion dollars of hidden property such as stocks, bonds, mortgages, etc. Efforts already are being made to have the seven per cent valuation reduced to four or five per cent, according to propaganda sent members of the legislature by firms dealing in securities. That is a matter for consideration.

Constructive Work

There were promises of much constructive legislation, numerous amendments to present laws, with fewer and better bills being introduced. Among the resolutions, however, are several suggesting changes in the federal government's structure, such as those by

Woods' Clever Kiddies To Be Seen on Stage

A program of singing, dancing and dramatic art will be presented Thursday night, January 29, by pupils of the Woods' School of Klever Kiddies. The dramatic piece is called "At the Court of St. Valentine," and includes twenty-one solo and group dances. The production is sponsored by the Columbus avenue Parent-Teacher association, for whose benefit the recital will be staged. A novel feature of the entertainment will be seven living pictures, or tableaux, portraying love from youth to old age, the characters being taken by Glendale men and women. Each tableau will be accompanied by vocal solos and quartettes, arranged by Mrs. J. H. Burris and Milford Jackson.

The semi-annual productions given by the Woods' School of Klever Kiddies are always characterized by a combination of simplicity, beauty and art. The play will be given in the auditorium of the Glendale avenue Intermediate. Tickets at popular prices may be obtained from the Klever Kiddies or from the pupils of the Columbus avenue school.

FATE OF CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

It is predicted that the child labor amendment will not be ratified by a sufficient number of states to be incorporated in the constitution, but at least California has done her duty. A great deal of the opposition to the measure is sincere, but more of it is selfish. The cry of state's rights and nationalization of childhood is heard and it is true it would be much more desirable to have questions of this kind handled by the various states. But the child labor laws are so varied and so conflicting in different states that a manufacturer who can, under the law, hire cheap child labor for long hours is able to force out of competition with him one in a neighboring state where laws are favorable to labor and childhood.

In regard to the fear so often expressed that Congress may pass laws prohibiting spare-time and vacation-time jobs for children, it will be remembered that we did have a federal child labor law which was working out satisfactorily and that the exploitation of childhood has increased since this law has been declared unconstitutional. Also it is contended that the men we send to Congress are at least as intelligent and patriotic as our representatives in the state Legislatures and it might be expected that they are a bit more so, and of course our state Legislatures have a right to regulate child labor.

Of course, the effect upon childhood itself and upon the future of the nation is the vital thing to be considered, a phase of the question which opponents of the measure consistently avoid.

The states that now protect their children from exploitation for gain are the ones that will ratify this amendment. California's hands are clean, but after all, this won't help to straighten the tired little backs in the fish canneries on the gulf, the beet fields of Colorado, the sweatshops of New York and New Jersey, the mines of Pennsylvania and the cotton mills of the south.

McCORMACK REVERSES OPINION

Changing one's mind has long been the prerogative of woman, but man enjoys the same privilege, it is apparent. Some months ago John McCormack waxed very sarcastic about the radio and those who took part in free radio concerts, saying in effect that such entertainers were biting off their noses to spite their faces. He stated very emphatically that he would never broadcast his voice. But John McCormack sang through station WEAF in New York the other night, while seven other stations broadcast his wonderful voice to delighted millions.

The world is moving along and it is futile to attempt to "buck" progress because some particular custom or invention or innovation threatens to affect our own business adversely. It is better to jump in with the crowd and help the thing along. Often, we find, like Mr. McCormack, that our fears were ungrounded.

PASTOR MUST REFORM

The members of the fashionable New England Congregational church in Chicago have made no objections—as far as has been reported—because Jesus was "a friend of publicans and sinners," but they are determined that their pastor shall not be that kind of a man. After a great deal of criticism of Rev. Thornton A. Mills for bringing "down and outers" into the church, they have given him his choice of reforming or resigning. At a meeting of the church council the other day a resolution was adopted ordering the pastor to conform his teachings and methods with the wishes of the council or quit.

A pastor who has been acting upon the belief that "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners" will probably find it difficult to conform his acts and teachings to suit those who believe that Jesus came to save the members of the New England Congregational church.

INTRODUCING BILLS

It is estimated that the cost of introducing a bill in Congress is $25, to say nothing of the time wasted in considering unnecessary legislation. The New York state legislature in a single forenoon recently considered more than 300 separate bills, dealing with everything under the sun, and the result was thought to be quite an accomplishment. Time and again attention has been called to the waste incurred when endless bills are introduced in Congress or the legislatures of the states that have no hope of passing but are drafted merely to satisfy some voter or voters back home, but these complaints have been without avail. It would seem to be the sensible and economical procedure for a congressman or legislator not only to refuse to vote for any law not absolutely needed, but also to oppose the introduction of bills that have no chance of passing.

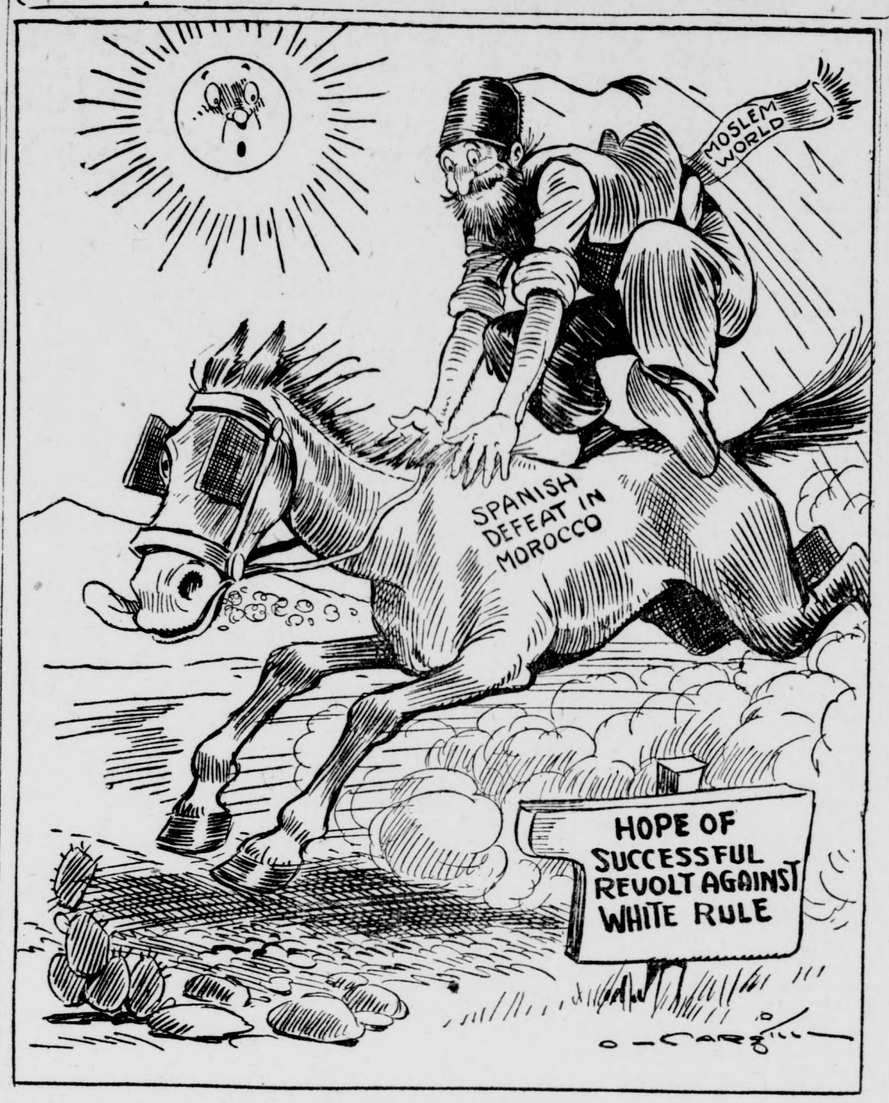
WOULD STOP ASIATIC IMMIGRATION

The immigration problem is not one that is peculiar to the United States. It is a question that other countries also are considering and are dealing with much more drastically than we are. British Columbia demanded total cessation of Oriental immigration when the legislature of that province passed a resolution asking the federal government to withdraw immediately from all international treaties which prevent the Dominion from controlling the admission of Asiatics, also that Canada sign no agreement which would restrict the right of provincial governments to control the social and industrial activities of Orientals. Later a resolution introduced by the Minister of Labor was passed by the Assembly urging all industries in the province to replace their Oriental employes with white men.

THE KNOCKER

Some one points out that knockers are invariably of very small mental calibre. The knocker has not the ability to look at any question from two sides or to consider more than one phase of the matter at a time. His argument is usually as free from logic as that of the man who contended that Hades must be a more desirable place than Paradise, since there are more people there. Often, like this man, the knocker merely assumes that a thing is true, and even if it is a fact he hasn't the mentality to consider its cause or its relation to other truths and principles. If you aspire to be a knocker, be fair. Tell the whole story, don't segregate one statement and thereby change its meaning by eliminating the context.

THE MOUNT COMES TO MOHAMMED!



Music Lessons

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Every parent should teach a child to play upon some sort of an instrument.

Learning music has a reflex action upon one's character. It does not always make a man good but it has a tendency to increase self control, patience, persistence, and these are qualities that every man desires.

Particularly, it is valuable for a girl to learn to play the piano or the harp.

"Have you ever noticed," someone some time ago wrote, "that whenever Belasco wants a hero 'vamped' he places a lady at a baby grand piano shaded by a becoming lamp. Like the children of Hamlin, the poor male cannot resist the appeal to kiss the hands trailing over the keys, for a 'vamp' can never look so charming as when she is seated at a baby grand, and in no time they are in the love scene."

What is true of the piano is still truer of the harp. Every woman looks angelic when she is playing the harp no matter what her personal attractions.

"I think if I had a small daughter," says a recent writer, "and she showed any inclination in that direction, I should first buy her a little Irish harp which she could handle easily and is not expensive, and then about her sixteenth birthday I would present her with a full-grown harp."

Every child should be taught to play something, but in choosing what she will play she should be allowed to follow her own inclinations. One does much better work in following one's fancy than in going against it.

Many parents think their children are unmusical when they have simply chosen wrong.

It has been said: "To be brought up with beautiful music makes one want to be a part of it, to really do something beside just listen."

It is the parent's duty not only to get his children acquainted, by the piano player and the phonograph, with good music, but by assisting him in producing it.

SCOTS LIKE CINEMAS

Dundee, Scotland, a city of 200,000 population, has twenty motion picture theatres and not a single building for the legitimate drama. The motion picture houses are always so crowded that it will be necessary to build half a dozen new theatres before the city is adequately taken care of, it is said, even if the population does not grow.

Puzzle

HOW TO SOLVE PUZZLE

The words start in the numbered squares and run either across or down. Only one letter is placed in each white square. If the proper words are found each combination of letters in the white squares will form words. The key to the puzzle—the first word—is given in the drawing. Below are keys to the other words.

(RUNNING ACROSS)

Word 5. A word in this sentence. "To be or not to be, that is the question."
Word 6. Another word in the sentence just given.
Word 8. A jungle animal.

(RUNNING DOWN)

Word 2. A beast of burden.
Word 3. A pet.
Word 4. An insect that stings.
Word 7. The direction a sky rocket takes.

Daly Not to Replace Bob Fisher at Harvard

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—Denial that Major Charles D. Daly would succeed Robert T. Fisher as head coach of Harvard varsity eleven was made today by Fred Moore, graduate manager of the university athletics. Moore's statement followed published reports of daly's appointment. Daly was a former Harvard star quarterback and a West Point coach.

Who's Who

English is an adopted language for Rafael Sabatini, whose novel, "Scaramouche," a story of the French Revolution, was awarded the $10,000 Zukor prize, as the best novel produced as a motion picture in 1924.

His father, Vincenzo Sabatini, married an Englishwoman who lived in Italy and is now more fluent in Italian than in English. Italian was the language of Sabatini's youth; his father spoke no English, and his mother taught him only a few phrases.

The historical romancer studied at the Ecole Cantonale in Zug, Switzerland, and at the Lycee of Oporto, Portugal. He began early to feel intense interest in history. He showed great facility in learning languages. This, he believes, very nearly caused his ruin.

"The fact that at 18 I spoke and wrote five languages with almost equal fluency, and possessed the foundation of a knowledge of a sixth (English) seemed to my father, who knew nothing of such matters, a splendid equipment for a commercial career," Sabatini says.

So he entered business in England, and, for a few years, was diligent. Then the urge to write came upon him. First he wrote for magazines, and was overwhelmingly surprised to find that he could sell his stories. His first book, "The Loves of Yvonne," was published in 1902.

Since that time Mr. Sabatini has been wholly devoted to literature. He is a British subject, and married an Englishwoman. The Sabatinis have two children, a boy and a girl, both in their teens.

It was almost twenty years after the first book was published that Mr. Sabatini at last struck gold in "Scaramouche." Eight of his earlier novels had been imported into this country, but "Scaramouche," so the legend runs, was declined by seven publishers before it was undertaken by an eighth.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNARD

Schopenhauer made the remark that no man can see "over his own height."

What he meant was that you cannot see in another man any more than you have in yourself; and your own intelligence strictly determines the extent to which you understand him. If your intelligence is of a very low order, mental qualities in another, even though they be of the highest kind, will have no effect upon you; you will see nothing in their possessor except the meanest side of his individuality — in other words, just those parts of his character and disposition which are weak and defective. Your whole estimate of the man will be confined to his effects, and his higher mental qualities will no more exist for you than colors exist for those who cannot see.

The point is that you must be tolerant of persons and things you do not understand.

* * *

"Never combat any man's opinion; for though you reached the age fo Methuselah, you would never have done setting him right upon all the absurd things he believes," Schopenhauer sagely observes.

* * *

"The man who comes into the world with the notion that he is really going to instruct it in matters of the highest importance, may thank his stars if he escapes it with a whole skin."

* * *

You must have noticed how easily and how quickly similarity, or difference of mind and disposition, makes itself felt between one man and another as soon as they begin to talk; every little trifle shows it.

* * *

When two persons of totally different natures are conversing, almost everything said by the one will, in a greater or less degree, displease the other, and in many cases produce positive annoyance; even though the conversation turn upon the most out-of-the way subject, or one in which neither of the parties has any real interest. People of similar natures, on the other hand, immediately come to feel a kind of general agreement; and if they are cast very much in the same mold, complete harmony will flow from their intercourse.

But in no case can a man be in complete accord with anyone but himself.

Today's Poem

If thous must love me, let it be for naught
Except for love's sake only. Do not say
"I love her fos her smile, her look, her way
Of speaking gently; for a trick of thought
That falls in well with mine, and certes brought
A sense of pleasant ease on such a day,"—
For these things in themselves, beloved, may
Be changed, or change for thee,—and love so wrought
May be unwrought so. Neither love me for
Thine own dear pity's wiping my cheek dry,
A creature might forget to weep who bore
Thy comfort long, and love thy love thereby,
But love me for love's sake, that evermore
Thou may'st love on through love's eternity.

ATWATER PASTOR TAKES LOVE TEXT

Rev. M. Grant Nelson Calls God 'World's Greatest Lover' In Sermon

At the Atwater Park Baptist church, corner of Perlita avenue and Tyburn street, the pastor, Rev. M. Grant Nelson, preached last night on the stirring theme, "The World's Greatest Lover," from the text in I. John 3:10, "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins." He continued:

"Paul said that love is greater than faith or hope, and Prof. Drummond, beginning where Paul left off said, "Love is the greatest thing in the world." I suppose they had reference to the impelling power of love. Love is mightier than law, for Jesus said that love fills the law full. And have you ever noticed that Cupid is never represented as using the chain and padlock of law, but always the silken thread of love?

"No cable chain of law is sufficiently strong to bind two cold hearts together for the stress and strain of human life—the divorce court comes sooner or later. But quoting Moffitt, 'love is very patient, very kind. Love knows no jealousy; love makes no parade, gives itself no airs, is never rude, never selfish, never irritated, never resentful; love is never glad when others go wrong, love is gladdened by goodness, always hopeful, always patient." Only once has my wife suggested divorce, and that when I tried to raise a full beard. But love won out in even that—I shaved after a few weeks.

Records of Loyalty

"Could the full story of what love has wrought in the world be written, there would be records of loyalty, of devotion, of sacrifice, that would compel our admiration and wonder. But the most marvelous of all would be the manifestation of love as set forth in my text. 'Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins.'

"Here we are confronted with the glorious truth of a loving God. There are three great theistic religions in the world. Judaism, Mohammedanism, and Christianity. The Jews hardly got beyond the idea of a tribal God. Jehovah was to them a God of Jews only, whose love did not extend beyond the chosen people. Mohammedanism has no conception of a God of love. We are told that there are ninety-nine names for God in the Mohammedan religion, but the name "Father" is not found among them. Of all the religions in the world, Christianity alone has given us the glorious conception of a loving God, not simply of a tribe, but of the whole world. There are gods to be conciliated, gods to be obeyed, gods to be feared, gods to be abhorred yet dreaded, but the gospel of Christ alone brings to all mankind a God who loves and who may be loved, 'O Love that will not let me go, I rest my weary soul in Thee.'

Revelation of Love

"But my text takes us on to the revelation of a loving God sending his Son on our behalf. God seeking man. It has ever been thus. "Adam! where art thou?' was the first word that God said to our first parents after the fall. What wonderful pictures are given in the Bible of the seeking attitude of a loving Heavenly Father! 'Ho! every one that thirsteth, come,' is the Lord's message through the Prophet Isaiah. 'The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost,' was the keynote of Christ's life on earth. 'Behold I stand at the door and knock,' is the message of the closing book of the Bible. You have heard His loving voice calling, you have felt His, gentle knocking at the door of your heart. Yes, even now. Shall we not cry to Him? 'O Lamb of God! I come, I come.'

"The climax of my text is before us. God 'loved us and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins. The Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.' No wonder the apostle Paul exclaimed in rapture, 'The glorious gospel of the blessed God.' Tell me the story of Jesus, write on my heart every word. Tell me the story most precious, sweetest that ever was heard."

'Wayside Cross' Sermon At Methodist Service

"Doing With Both Hands Well" was the subject of the sermon delivered yesterday morning by Rev. J. C. Livingston, pastor of the Casa Verdugo Methodist Episcopal church. "The Wayside Cross" was the sermon theme for last night's sermon. Special music for the morning service was furnished by Prof. A. L. Miller, with harp accompaniment.

PASTOR EXPLAINS PRESBYTERIANISM

Winnard of Tropico Church Tells of Creed and How Formed

At the service yesterday morning at the Tropico Presbyterian church, Dr. James F. Winnard gave the first of a series of sermons on "The Creed of the Presbyterians." He said:

"Contrary to the minds of many, Presbyterianism is not a system of doctrine but a form of church government copied from the organization plans of the early apostolic church. The doctrine of the Precgyterian church is Calvinistic. It embodies the essential teachings of Scripture as expounded by John Calvin, of Geneva. Not that he had formulated a new system of doctrine but that he, after Paul, was the ablest exponent of the 'Faith once delivered to the Saints.'

The doctrinal standards of our church are three—the confession of faith and the larger and the shorter catechisms. These are not three creeds but one, varying in form, fullness and purpose. Each contains all the essential doctrines of the word of God. The men who formulated our standards were called the Westminster divines because for five and one half years they met in the Abbey of Westminster, while the work was being performed.

Presbyterian Standard

"The same reason gives our standards the title of Westminster confession. Our creed was formulated at a time when the human intellect had reached its zenith—the days of Shakespeare, of Bacon, and of others whose names stand pre-eminent to this day in philosophy, theology and literature.

"The task of these 157 men was not to create a new system of doctrine but to formulate one with which they were already familiar—to give to the accepted Bible system of truth a complete, concise statement to serve as a basis for ecclesiastical fellowship and co-operation. There is not one creed in christendom upon which has been spent one-tenth of the time, labor and ability as upon the Westminster standards. Every statement of essential Calvinistic doctrine is substantiated by equally essential statements of the word of God. Their loyalty to the Bible is such that the creed of Presbyterians will need reconstruction only when the Bible needs it. They express the mind of Scripture even as the Scriptures express the mind of God."

Central Church Plans Brown Revival Meeting

Plans for participation in the John E. Brown revival campaign which opens in Glendale February 8 will be made Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock, when a meeting of all officers of the Central Avenue Methodist church is held at the church. Officers of the official board, Sunday school, women's organizations, Epworth League, Men's Brotherhood and any other church officials are requested to attend the meeting. Rev. Leo C. Kline, pastor of the church, announces that there will be a devotional service preceding the meeting.

Building Committee to Meet at First Baptist

A meeting of the building committee of twenty-five of the First Baptist church will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the church. Rev. Ernest E. Ford, chairman of the committee, announces that all members of the committee are requested to be present. A business meeting of the church will be held Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of receiving reports from the committee. A season of devotions will also be held at the Wednesday night service.

Montrose Methodists Hear Rev. George Durr

Rev. George L. Durr, pastor of the Montrose Methodist church, corner of Montrose and Orangedale avenues, preached a sermon yesterday morning on the subject "The Secret Place of the Most High." The first quarterly conference of the church for the new year will be conducted by Dr. Walter Buckner, Friday night.

'Self And Efficiency' Ananda Ashrama Talk

Swami Paramananda, founder and head, had charge of services yesterday afternoon at Ananda Ashrama, the subject being "Self and Efficiency."

Dr. Funk Is Preacher For First Lutherans

Holy communion was observed yesterday at the services of the First Lutheran church, 233 South Kenwood street. Dr. H. C. Funk, pastor, conducted the services.

REV. CALDERWOOD TAKES DAVID TEXT

Congregational Pastor In Sermon on Change In Distress

Rev. Charles M. Calderwood, pastor of the Congregational church, delivered a sermon yesterday morning on "Enlargement in Distress," saying:

"After David had the annoyance of Absolom's rebellion and had the time to think it over, he wrote: 'Thou hast enlarged me when I was in distress.' He had been hemmed in on all sides. His liberties had been curtailed, his actions restricted, limitations had been placed about him, but his soul had been enlarged. Physical restrictions caused soul growth. Limitations gave liberty. The imprisoning experience became the minister of strong and healthy growth. He thought it would shut him in, but, in reality, it opened him out. That which he thought would be an instrument of depression, crushing him into the dust, surprised him by being a minister of elevation, lifting him into larger areas of life. He was enlarged when he was in distress.

"There are large numbers of people who share this experience. God shuts us in. We seem to lose our freedom. We cannot go as we would. Then in our confinement we seem to rise. Instead of our liberty being curtailed, we enjoy the 'glorious liberty of the sons of God.' Our sympathies are increased by our sorrows or our sickness.

Spiritual World

The spiritual world grows upon us in our distress. We see more of it through our tears. God often sends his choicest messages to us in envelopes with black borders. Elijah, in his distress, had a new revelation of God. Paul counsels Timothy to come in with him and endure hardness. We do not always do people a favor by making things soft and easy for them.

"Character is not formed without struggle. The closing in of the temporal means an upreaching for the eternal. Sometimes when the outlook is dark the uplook is bright. Stars may be seen at noon from the bottom of a well. 'Sweet are the uses of adversity,' for hindrances lead us to discover our unutilized powers to find new sources of power in God. When the world closes about us in distress we reach upward to God."

Bible Times Rehearsed By Mrs. Adaline Becker

"In Bible times the law of vibration was used to destroy the walls of Jericho, said Mrs. Adaline Becker addressing an audience at Hahn's auditorium yesterday morning. "It is significant to note that the knowledge of this law is again known to men, but now used in a constructive instead of a destructive manner. The promised land again beckons mankind from his wanderings among the waste places of the earth to happier times and finer ways of life."

Occult Science Talk Given by Guy Moore

Last night in the Occult Science of Christ church, 113 South Orange street, Guy Moore delivered an interesting sermon on "The Sevenfold Ladder of Progress." He said:

"All genuine achievement in life is the result of study and application of certain fundamental laws that pertain to the essentials of progress. There are many laws, and the process of human evolution is really the process of learning and applying these laws. This evening we are to study seven laws of spiritual progress, laws that relate to the entire field of spiritual growth. The first of these is the law of impersonality, the second is the law of introspection, the third law is that of obedience; the law of thought is next, and then the law of life, the sixth is the law of unity, and the last of the great rules of the spiritual life is that of harmony."

BIBLE CHOSEN AS METHODIST TALK

Rev. Johnson at Broadway Church Compares Book To Sciences

"Known unto God are all His works from the beginning of the world." Taking this passage from the fifteenth chapter of the book of the Acts, Rev. Maurice M. Johnson preached on "The Bible and the Physical Sciences" at the Broadway Methodist church, South, Sunday morning.

"Every honest student of the Bible is forced to admit that God is the author of the book or the human agents were willful perverters of the truth for hundreds and hundreds of times such expressions as these occur: 'Thus saith the Lord,' 'The Lord spake through the mouth of,—' 'The words of the Lord came unto—' and other similar statements. Now if God did write the Book in its original form He surely was not limited as to the origin, laws and contents of the physical universe. In other words, the Creator of the universe hadn't forgotten all He ever knew about arithmetic, physics, chemistry, biology, geology, anthropology, astronomy or any 'ology' or 'onomy' when He decided to talk to His little human creatures. No, my dear friends, the God of creation never contradicts Himself in revelation. The God of the physical world is the God of the written Word, also. He knew as much when He was preparing the one as the other The one faithfully reveals the result of abused or broken law, whether in volcanic mountain or volitional man; and the other with equal faithfulness records the result of abused or broken law, whether in ecclesiastical pride and formality or in fleshly lusts and bestiality.

"The Bible is the most scientific book in the world. It speaks accurately, authoritatively and finally. Though its purpose is not the teaching of the physical sciences yet it displays no ignorance nor wrong conception of those sciences. True, its language is not high sounding and technical but its statements are revelations. Who told Moses that the order of creation was what scientists tell us today that it is: first—the earth; second—vegetation; third—animals, and fourth—man? How many hundreds of years was it after Moses that man would believe that all the seas were linked together as Moses wrote in Genesis 1:9, 'Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together in one place, and let the dry land appear?' The Bible states that 'the life of the flesh is in the blood, and I have given it to you upon the altar to make atonement for your souls, for it is the blood that maketh atonement for the soul.' (Lev. 17:11. For about three thousand years men refused to believe this, but in about 1629 Sir William Harvey discovered the circulation of the blood and the smart men of science found out that our arteries (air tubes) did not have air but blood in them. How did Old Noah get his scientific information as to how to conduct a sea-going vessel?

In 1918 the wires flashed the news over the country that the new boat just launched up at Portland was the first sea-going vessel that was scientifically perfect as to its proportions. The news reached a Godly lumberman out in Kansas who was good at figures and rich in Bible knowledge. He got his pencil and his Bible and in a few minutes found that the proportions of Noah's ark and this Portland boat were exactly the same. Who told Job over three hundred years ago that the earth was suspended by gravity? He said of God, 'He stretcheth out the north over the empty space and hangeth the earth upon nothing.'

"Thus it would seem that God just steps aside, as it were, to give us a little peak here and there into some of the then unsolved secrets of nature. We believ that true science and fair Bible study are ever a help one to the other, never at enmity. Prof. Dana once said: 'The grand old Book of God still stands, and this old earth, the more its leaves are turned over and pondered, the more it will sustain and illustrate the Sacred Word.'"

HISTORIC PINE TREE

PAUL'S TEACHING, REV. KEMP'S TALK

St. Mark's Episcopal Pastor Describes How Apostle Interpreted Life

Rev. Philip K. Kemp, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, delivered a sermon yesterday morning on "Paul's Philosophy of the Spiritual Life," saying:

"The Apostle Paul was a very active man who conceived of life in terms of the athletic field or the place of combat. It was a contest for mastery over the spiritual life of man. It was not the contest that interested men in the middle ages between God and the devil, but between the opposing forces which are found in the man himself. We may not be conscious of the fact, but every decision we make is the result of conflict between the aspiration after the good and the lust of the lower part of our nature. St. Paul called one the life of the spirit and the other the lusts of the flesh.

'There is in each of us a spiritual nature which owes its original existence to the quickening of the Holy Spirit. As Jesus said, 'Except a man be born again, he cannot enter the kingdom of God.' There must be a constant supply of life-giving power which can alone come from God. This is at once the basis of our sacramental life. Not that the spiritual power may not come through other sources, but this is one of the ways we receive it most readily. On the other hand, there is also a fleshly nature which includes all the other desires of man, those appetites and passions which we have in common with all animal creation.

If Paul Were Alive

"If St. Paul were alive today, he would find much in modern scientific thought, and even in modern history to substantiate his ideas. At the present, in thought and action the interests of the flesh seem to be uppermost. The low physical plane in contemporary literature and drama speaks of the power of the lusts of the flesh. Those weaknesses of the individual and social life that the daily papers have made us familiar with but re-echo the apostle's indictment of his own day. Those who cater to those interests cannot inherit the kingdom of God.

"This great analysis of the forces at work in our spiritual life have but one great conclusion, that a noble life can alone be found on the foundation of a great faith. This faith is found just where the disciples of New-Testament days found it when they left all and followed Jesus; when St. Paul revolutionized his life and was obedient to the heavenly vision and let God in Jesus Christ become the dominant power in his life. The lusts of the flesh are put aside, are controlled, are held in subjection, because there is one who holds our faith and to whom we have committed our lives. As we are true to that faith we shall walk in the Spirit and shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh."

CHRIST'S COMING GRAND VIEW TALK

Rev. Thomas Says Presence Of Saviour Greatest Of Experiences

"Not the imminent coming, but the imminent presence of Jesus Christ is the word of power and of hope today," Rev. George W. Thomas said last night at the Grand View Community church.

"This is the first Sabbath after the birth of our new church with all it means to us, to the world, to souls unborn, and to the Kingdom of Christ. He who has not seen Christ coming and felt His blessed arrival in power has missed the greatest thing in the experiences through which we are passing. He who does not behold the progressive and continuous arrival of Christ in the mighty victories on the spiritual battlefields of our time is missing the greatest thrill of power.

"Every generation needs to see Christ coming, watch Him in His victories in which they may share and praise Him for the nearness of His daily presence. Then all the generations together shall glorify Him in His great Day of Consummations.

Our Own Duty

"Our own duty just now is to consolidate the gains we have made and prepare with assurance for new advances in the name of that new Kingdom whose slogan is 'The Lord is Here.' We shall do that best by remembering why we are here.

"Paul says: 'And He is the head of the body, the church, who is the beginning and the first begotten of the dead; that in all things He might have the Pre-eminence.' What a vision of the purpose and privilege of the church. Not to give itself or ourselves prominence but to give Christ pre-eminence.

"Let us set every stake, establish every institution, plan every program, motivate every purpose with the supreme objective in mind. That sets 'Christ in us the hope of glory' and shall if we continue faithful to it, present us holy, and unblamable, and unreprovable in His sight."

HOLY SUPPER IS TOPIC OF SERMON

Program of Upper Room Is Stressed In Address by Rev. Edmonds

On Sunday morning, at the Glendale Presbyterian church, a large and attentive audience listened to an earnest sermon by the pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, on witnessing. The text was "Ye are witnesses of these things." Luke 24:68. He said in part:

"The palace was the upper chamber in Jerusalem; it was the first cathedral of the church, though there was no altar, no choir, no nave, no crucifix. It was without Gothic arches and steepled splendors; just four bare walls of a common room, and never has there been a house built that held more of God than that plain room. A holy of holies, but Christ's presence transforms the humblest dwelling and the lowliest into sources of life that can move heaven and earth.

"It was in this upper room where the holy supper was instituted; it was in this room the prayer meeting was held that preceded the coming of the holy spirit; there Christ showed Himself after His resurrection.

"The group in the room consisted of Jesus and ten men, Thomas the doubter being absent. These are the friends of Christ, who had followed Him through three eventful years of His life; they had seen Him arrested, watched Him stagger up the road under the cross; saw soldiers nail Him to the tree; watched Him die; laid His body in the tomb, yet here He is again with them. Hallelujah! He is risen.

Destiny of Race

"And since He is with them once more, what care they for the soldiers, or mobs, or the world? Ah, they must care! This is their mission; they must care for a hostile world; next to their Lord, there is nothing they must care for quite so much. They must not care for themselves; they must not care for ease or peace or joy or count life dear unto themselves. The world God loved and Christ died to save waits outside the closed door. There have been rooms in which the destiny of nations has been decided, the map of the world has been changed, but in this room, the destiny of the race was involved.

"Through that door will pass a force incarnated in personalities of eleven men that will shake down the barriers of hate; open the prison doors of sin, and set the prisoners free, comfort the broken-hearted. What a program!

"How shall this program be accomplished? File out of that upper room 'Ye are witnesses of these things.' In the gray dawn of a new day they left that upper room. The tides of a hostile world began to break over them; they fearlessly faced the battle line, gave their testimony, and laid down their lives.

Same Program Today

"This is still the program. Since that night, we have gotten much together. The church is rich and powerful; the foremost nations call themselves Christians, but these are not the things that win. The world is saved only as Christ's disciples become His witnesses.

"To be a witness, one must have an experience. It is not enough to know what somebody else knows. He must know Christ in forgiveness of sin; an unconverted man may be a church member, an official, found charities, support missionaries, do many good things, but through these alone, he cannot get into the program of the upper room. To do that he must have an experience, be born again and be able to say, 'I know.'

"Then his testimony must be specific. The place and mission of the church is definite. The church is not asked to give its opinion on every ripple that appears on the sea of life, nor is it called to settle every moral and political problem. But she is to tell what she knows about Christ, His saving power to save and keep from sin. A witness must be faithful. 'Ye are My witnesses.'

Witness Three Things

"We are to be witnesses of three things; first to the sufferings of Christ. The world must stop at the cross. We must live the cross. Mere talk convinces no one. To live the cross of Christ is unanswerable. Then we must testify to His resurrection. The resurection is the proof and seal of our justification; the final proof of all He taught. We must experience the resurrection and then walk in newness of life in Him.

"Again we must testify to repentance and remission of sins in His name. This is the message from the upper room that the world yet needs and is hungry to hear. The world is not affected so much by the latest theories of science, but how sin can be put away and man be brought into peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Such was the program of that upper room. As that little group passed out, they beban to tell the story concerning Christ and His saving power. They testified to the thing they knew.

"Tomorrow we shall be in the world, and the salvation of the world dtpends on us. O, to catch the spirit that filled those men in the upper room, and to go forth as His faithful witnesses. May God grant it for the sake of Christ who came to seek and to save the lost. 'For we are witnesses of these things'."

Your Dollars Are Helping to Build a Greater Glendale

All citizens must unite for Community development. Leaders are necessary, but of themselves they can accomplish nothing. Everyone in Glendale is proud of the city, the remarkable records it has made and the institutions it has fostered.

Let us not be impersonal in our Community Pride and Loyalty. Let us each do what we can and then give ourselves credit for what we have done. Let us not say, "They did thus and so," or "They should do thus and so." Let us each assume our share of the responsibility that belongs to all of us.

As was said, leaders are necessary. We cannot all plan the big things or do them but there are duties which the humblest of us may and should assume that are of great consequence to Glendale.

Nearly sixty thousand people claim Glendale as their home. How much money these people spend in a day, a week or a month it is impossible to compute, but we know it is an enormous sum. Much of this money is spent in Glendale, but some of it goes out of town.

You do your trading in Glendale and you see the results in a bigger and a better Glendale. You cannot, of course, trace your money or know the things it accomplishes for Glendale, but without your dollars and those of your neighbors and fellow-citizens, Glendale's constant and steady growth would be impossible.

If you are doing your trading in Glendale do not hesitate to take your share of the credit for what is being accomplished in Community Development. Say: "We did so and so," and "We are going to do this and that."

The advertisers who sponsor this page are doing what they can for the Community by catering to your desires to the best of their ability and by trying to instill the idea of Community Loyalty in all Glendalians. You have helped wonderfully in this campaign by spending your money in Glendale, where it has worked and is still working for all of us.

Petty Thieves Prowl City Over Week-End

An attempt to burglarize the home of Joseph B. Baum, 606 West Vine street, Saturday night, was discovered Sunday morning, when Mr. Baum went to a bedroom window and found the screen pried off. Footprints were found outside the window. The Glendale police department was notified and Sergeant F. C. Williams, who investigated, reported the footprints were made by boys.

Mrs. Helen L. MacMullin of 215 North Brand boulevard reported today that several mornings last week her morning paper and a bottle of milk were stolen. Police believed this to be the work of boys.

Roy Samollow of 715 South Columbus avenue reported the theft of a light overcoat from a car parked near Pacific avenue and San Fernando road, Sunday afternoon.

C. D. Eastman of 508 Porter street reported the theft of a lap robe from his car while parked in the driveway of that address Saturday night.

Charles Fisher of 400 Piedmont park reported the theft of a bicycle from the Public Library Saturday afternoon.

The Burbank police reported the theft of a French bulldog from Mrs. Hannah Rutte of that city some time Saturday. The dog was black with white markings.

RESERVATIONS BL RADIO

Airplane passengers between London and Paris, while in flight, can reserve theatre tickets in either city by radio.

FROM EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, Jan. 12.—Councilman Edwin Baker, a resident of this community, has announced his candidacy for re-election to the Los Angeles City Council, stating in part: "The recent decision of the Supreme court has definitely settled the question of district representation and after July 1, 1925, the City Council will be increased from nine to fifteen members, each to represent a district to be outlined by the Council before March 5.

"By reason of geographical location, the first district will embrace Annandale, Eagle Rock, Highland Park, Garvanza, and such additional territory as may be necessary to establish the quota of votes required, as based on the last election for governor."

Councilman Baker was for four terms a member of the California state legislature.

Eagle Rock postal receipts for 1924 totaled $5,382.71, as compared with $4,953.61 for 1923, the records show. Domestic money orders increased from 1,127 the previous year to 1,210 in the year just past.

It is rumored that Mrs. R. A. Collins of York boulevard will be nominated for a seat in the Los Angeles City Council at the next election.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. McClintic of La Roda avenue entertained as recent guests Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Macklin, of Parkersburg, West Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Macklin and daughter of Huntington Beach, California, Mr. H. W. Macklin of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Humes of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The Messrs. Macklin are brothers of Mrs. McClintic and this is the first family reunion in twenty years.

The Study section of the Twentieth Century club meets at the clubhouse every Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

BURBANK NEWS

BURBANK, Jan. 12.—The site tentatively selected by the Board of Education for the Magnolia Park school is 500 feet east of Magnolia avenue, between Cordova and Avon streets. This was disclosed at the last meeting of the board.

With this selection the sites of four new school houses have been tentatively decided upon, the understanding being conditioned on receiving the money from sale of the bonds. The other three sites are:

For the Grismer avenue district, a site on Lincoln street on the Grismer avenue side of the Southern Pacific railway.

For the Vickroy park district, a site in the vicinity of the Jeffries place.

For the southeastern district, a site between Victory boulevard and Main street, north and south, and Elmwood and Valencia streets, east and west.

Chief John H. Long of the Burbank police department has ordered the removal of all slot machines from the city, on the grounds that a large number of them constitute gambling devices. It is understood the company controlling many of these machines will attempt to substitute another variety. Chief Long declares, however, that the order will stand until it can be proved to him the machines they propose to substitute offer no gambling features.

Director H. S. White of the Burbank Municipal band announces another concert, to be given at the Edison school auditorium the afternoon of January 18.

Dr. W. F. Farr of Hackensack, New Jersey, visited recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gunnerson, 552 Palm avenue. Dr. Farr is an old-time friend of the Gunnersons and is touring California.

TIMBER SAW

An electrically driven link saw weighing but seventy pounds has been invented that does as much work in cutting heavy timber as ten men could do with hand saws.

VAN NUYS

VAN NUYS, Jan. 12.—A program for conservation of natural resources throughout the San Fernando valley has been launched by the women's clubs of the valley. At a meeting to be held here tomorrow, a definite plan will be presented. State Arbor day, March 31, has been chosen as a day of special conservation demonstration by the women's clubs of the valley.

The movement aims particularly to conserve trees. At one time San Fernando valley was a treeless, desolate, windswept reach. Trees have revolutionized the valley, the women argue, and what trees there are must be kept, while thousands more must be planted. That in brief is their program.

"MINOR" CONSEQUENCES OF OBESITY

In one of last week's papers I told you of some of the serious disorders that threaten those who are much overweight—diabetes, heart and kidney diseases, hardening of the arteries and apoplexy being the more serious of these.

These grave disorders do not come on suddenly, although the consequences may, apparently, appear suddenly. Before they arise there are usually a series of what are considered minor disturbances that cause a lot of aches, pains and suffering, that, apparently, cannot be accounted for by the patient and sometimes not by the doctor. Today we will talk on these so-called minor disturbances and give the reasons for them.

The obese person is always tired. The least exertion makes him still more tired. This often is attributed to laziness, but, in reality, it is a profound toxemic condition—an auto-intoxication—plus, in most cases, a profound weakening of the muscles, including the muscles of the heart. (I'll go into this phase of the subject in a paper on exercises.)

The internal, as well as the external, mechanism of the O. P. is all cluttered with fat masses. These masses are apt to press upon the nerves and a countless variety of reflex symptoms may be caused which may seem like true organic disorders. However, they are just as real to the sufferer, and if they continue there may result true organic disorders. Symptoms of colic, gastritis, appendicitis, angina pectoris (heart pain), etc., may be but these reflex symptoms from pressure and auto-intoxication. I cannot tell you how many hundreds of letters I have had from the followers of my reducing instructions telling me that different forms of neuritis, rheumatic pains, indigestion, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, lame backs, stiff and painful joints, etc., have been entirely relieved after the weight was reduced.

In those much overweight, the skin is apt to become thickened and rough and its secretions become offensive and irritating, often causing eruptions The small capillaries in the skin are strained and become enlarged. The vitality of the skin becomes lowered so that it is more apt to become infected, and acne, pimples and boils result.

Among the so-called minor disturbances (but they are not so minor) is the effect of overweight upon the mental condition. There is a sluggishness of thought, a lack of ambition, and a sensitiveness which greatly affect the social life of a sufferer.

All of these things I have enumerated are the initial stages of the more serious diseases. Wood calls obesity the scourge of civilization that "should be tracked down and fought in its initial stages, for by so doing not only the individual, but the future of the race will be saved." He calls overweight a "physiological disequilibrium," and he believes that the offspring begot during such physiological disequilibrium will age quickly and its life be shortened by almost half.

We all agree with Dr. Wood that overweight should be fought in its beginning. Then the reduction can be accomplished in a few weeks instead of months or years. Better yet, overweight should be prevented. This can better be done if the weight is taken systematically and regularly. For this reason a good household scale should be considered an indispensable article of furniture. There are several bathroom scales on the market that are accurate enough for this purpose. If there is a baby in the family, instead of a baby scale, a good grade of scale that will weigh the whole family should be bought. They won't cost much more than a baby scale. (The bathroom scale would not do for weighing a baby because its weight has to be taken by ounces.) You will save enough on your food bill to buy a good bathroom scale within a short time, and those of you who have a tendency to overweight may always have to fight this tendency. So get yourself a scale if you possibly can.

Tomorrow—Mechanical Exercises While Reducing

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible; if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s.a.s.e., if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

HANGNAILS

If you keep your hands very nicely indeed you'll never have hangnails. But only a very few people will take the time or the trouble to keep their nails absolutely perfect. The rest, at various times, are going to have little hard bits of skin crop up which they'll worry at and dig at, and perhaps bite off, and then have a feverish finger for 24 hours.

Hangnails are nothing but hardened bits of skin, which owing to their dryness and hardness, break away from the live skin. Like a sore place in the mouth, you can't help worrying at them. You should cut them off as soon as they appear and if you are out of doors and can't get at a pair of cuticle scissors, put on gloves, so you won't be worried by them. This is because the temptation to bite at them is strong and because, if you do, you may make your whole finger hot and sore for hours.

Keep the skin around the nails well oiled if you want to avoid these annoying troubles. Every night is not too often to rub cold cream or some emollient into the nails. Drying liquids and powders should be avoided in manicuring, though if they must be used (bleaches are drying) they should be washed off and cream rubbed on afterwards to counteract their effect.

Housework dries the hands so that a dozen hangnails a week crop up. But thick greases, such as lard or petroleum jelly, smeared around the nails before doing the work, will help keep them away, even though scrubbing or dishwashing takes off all the oil in a short time. It takes a great deal of quite hot, soapy water to remove petroleum jelly. I've washed a panful of dishes, having smeared my nails first, and by using moderate care, ended with a little of the oil left around the nail edges.

Alice May: If you keep the facial muscles firm, there will be no sagging, and therefore no tendency to a double chin. Eczema must be treated by a doctor.

Freddie G.: Your perspiring hands may come from nervousness as this often happens to people of extreme nervous temperament until confidence is attained in appearing before an audience. After you have become accustomed to playing you will likely not have any of this tendency.

Use manicure scissors when necessary

Mary Lee: At 18 years with a height of four feet, eleven inches, your weight should be about 110 pounds.

SOCIAL EVENTS

X. V. I. Hostess

Miss Carrie Cornwell of 135 North Kenwood street was hostess Saturday afternoon to members of the X. V. I. club. The afternoon was spent informally with needlework as a diversion. Refreshments were served as a later feature. At the next meeting of the club Miss May Cornwell and Mrs. Albert Cornwell will entertain with a luncheon at the Oakmont Country club. Attending the meeting were: Mesdames Storey, Lester, Jones, Lillian Jones, Andrews, Patterson, Albert Cornwell, Lynch, Wilbur McFadden, Joseph McFadden, Misses Jackson, Borthick, May and Carrie Cornwell.

Joint Hostesses

Mrs. A. H. Montgomery and Miss Laura Montgomery shared honors as luncheon hostesses Saturday at their home, 1360 San Luis Rey drive, Verdugo Woodlands. Their guests were Mesdames E. J. Stanton, Leroy Stanton, L. B. Stanton, Stoce and Henry Swofford of Los Angeles. Mrs. Swofford, who is a talented pianist, entertained during the afternoon. Gold and lavender were combined in the color scheme for the luncheon appointments. At each place was a corsage of violets, while the centerpiece was violes and narcissi. A four-course luncheon was served.

Gives Luncheon

Mrs. E. L. Fitz of 1322 North Louise street was luncheon hostess today at Sunset Canyon Country club, honoring her sister, Mrs. M. W. Fitz of Manson, Iowa, and Mrs. Frank Maher of Fort Dodge, Iowa. Sweetpeas and roses formed the floral features of the luncheon table arrangement. The two honorees received corsage bouquets of lavender and white sweetpeas.

Birthday Dinner

Final plans are being made for the birthday dinner Saturday night at Masonic temple, marking the first anniversary of Glendale chapter, O. E. S. Mrs. Nellie Jennings, worthy matron, announces that dinner reservations can be made with her at Glendale 209-W or with Mrs. Freda Augustine at Glendale 2507-J.

CHOP SUEY ORIGIN

Chop Suey, although the most popular perhaps of all dishes served at so-called Chinese restaurants in America, is practically unknown in China. It recently has been introduced in the restaurants there. It was concocted by American Chinese restaurant owners.

Plan Reception

Mrs. Susan H. Wuist of Ohio, supreme worthy high priestess of White Shrine of Jerusalem, is to pay Southern California a visit in the near future, and Omar shrine of Glendale will honor her February 14, Valentine night, at a dinner and meeting in the Masonic temple on South Brand boulevard. Mrs. Warren Roberts, worthy high priestess of Omar shrine, outlined plans for the reception at the meeting Saturday night. She told of attending a meeting in Los Angeles of the "Chummy Club," composed of past and present supreme officers and this year's worthy high priestesses. The club is to honor Mrs. Wuist with a dinner and theatre party in Los Angeles. Omar Shrine members can secure tickets for the Valentine dinner from Mrs. Roberts. The next meeting of Omar shrine will be January 24, when, after a short business hour, members and friends will go to the home of Mrs. Elsie Sherman, 1217 East Lexington drive, for a card party. Score cards will be 50 cents. Florence Rice, Irma Kaiser and Luella Gregg will have charge of the cards. Refreshments will be served by Grace Moore, Luella Emerick and Grace Miller.

T. A. C. Speaker

Mrs. Nancy M. Schoonmaker, who recently toured Europe as an appointed representative of the General Federation of Women's clubs, and the National League of Women Voters, is to be the speaker tomorrow afternoon at the meeting of the Tuesday afternoon club. Her subject will be "International Obligations of American Women." Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, junior past president of the General Federation, says of Mrs. Schoonmaker, "She combines charm of presentation with keen powers of observation and discrimination concerning the value of her observations. American women are going to want to listen to her and especially in view of the new activities of club women in international relations, her message takes on significance." There will be a club luncheon at 12:15 with Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, club president, presiding. Speakers presented by Mrs. H. B. Woodill, curator of the travel department, will be Mesdames Mattison B. Jones, Mabel S. Rudy and T. F. Peirce, club members, who enjoyed recent travels abroad. The afternoon program will begin at 2 o'clock.

Business Women

Every member of the Business and Professional Women's club is urged to be present and bring a guest, tomorrow night for the 6:30 o'clock dinner at the California cafe, 121 West Broadway, and the meeting later at 113 West Broadway. Mrs. Pauline Regester, who is proprietor of the cafe, is a recent arrival in Glendale. She took part in the activities of the business women's club in her home in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and is anxious to have a large company of the club members present tomorrow night. At the meeting later Mrs. Arthur C. Ternill, who lived for four years in China, will tell of life in the Orient.

Meeting Tonight

An educational program will be presented at the meeting of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Mark's Episcopal church tonight. The meeting opens with the dinner served at 6:30 o'clock, after which the business session is held.

Install Officers

Open installation of recently elected officers of Mary Jane Gillett tent, No. 18, Daughters of Veterans will take place tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the hall, 1430½ South San Fernando road. Home Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Hall Damon of 1001 South Central avenue opened their home Saturday afternoon, January 10, 1925, for the marriage of Mrs. Ruth G. Van Court and James Allen Bullis. The ceremony was read at 2 o'clock by Rev. S. L. Mitchell, rector of Holy Faith Episcopal church, Inglewood. There were forty relatives and friends present for the wedding. At the hour for the service the Lohengrin march was played by Homer Simmons of Inglewood. Mrs. Van Court wore a gown of roshanara crepe in varied shades and carried sweetpeas and fern. She was given in marriage by her father, William A. Dutton of Los Angeles. Her daughter, in a frock of orange and silver taffeta, was her only attendant. Later a bridal luncheon was served. Mr. and Mrs. Bullis are motoring north for a short stay, planning to return to reside at 311 Roads End, Glendale. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bullis are native Californians. Mrs. Bullis has lived in Glendale five years, for a time being employed by Pendroy's department store. Mr. Bullis, who is a native of Glendale, is a brother of Wesley H. Bullis, inspector for the street department of the city of Glendale. He is in the plastering business.

Exhibit Pictures

Paintings by Hanson Puthuff, known as the "lyric painter of California," will be enjoyed tomorrow and the rest of January by members and guests of the Tuesday Afternoon club. This exhibit was secured by Mrs. Roy Ballagh, curator of the Fine Arts department. The Fine Arts department will meet tomorrow morning from 10 to 12 o'clock. During the first hour John W. Cotton, instructor, will talk on practical design. Mrs. Wagner, artist and interior decorator, who moved recently from San Diego to Los Angeles, will speak during the last hour on artistic arrangement of the home. Any of the club members interested in the work of the department, are invited to attend the meeting tomorrow.

War Mothers Meet

Officers of Lester Meyer chapter, American War Mothers of Glendale will be installed at a meeting Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the parlors of Glendale Presbyterian church. Mrs. Priscilla Houdyshell will be the installing officer. Officers of the Glendale American Legion auxiliary and the Women's Relief corps have been extended an invitation to attend. New officers, who will be installed are: Mrs. Susan Bradish, president; Mrs. Anna Morgan, second vice-president; Mrs. Selma Stine, third vice-president; Mrs. Eugenia Davis, fourth vice-president; Mrs. Ruby Nicholson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Josephine Cowlin, recording secretary; Mrs. Anna Parks, treasurer; Mrs. Flora Pixley, custodian of records; Mrs. Ida Wells, auditor.

Baked Lamb Chops with Dressing—Buy six lamb-chops from the loin. Bone and roll them. Parboil them till tender and brown. Season with salt and pepper as they cook. Then place the cooked chops on a baking pan, and heap this dressing on top of them: Put into a bowl two cups of soft bread crumbs; add one-fourth cup of grated or finely chopped mild American cheese, a pinch of celery salt or one teaspoon of finely chopped uncooked celery, one-half teaspoon of onion juice or one teaspoon of finely minced raw onion, and enough sweet milk to form a soft paste of the mixture (not too soggy). Bake the chops in a moderately hot oven till this dressing is brown—about ten minutes and serve at once.

Canned Corn en Casserole: Mix one pint of sweet cold milk with one can of corn, then scald the mixture. Season it with one teaspoon of salt, a pinch of pepper, and add two teaspoons of butter. Now turn this mixture onto two slightly beaten eggs and stir well. Pour all into a buttered baking dish or casserole, and slip it into a low oven, standing this dish in a shallow pan filled with hot water (as you would a baked custard). Let bake at low temperature till the center of the dish is firm. Serve hot.

Orange Puffs: Mix together one and one-fourth cups of pastry flour, two tablespoons of baking powder, a pinch of salt and one-half cup of sugar; sift this, then stir into it one-half cup of sweet milk which has been previously mixed with two egg-yolks, one tablespoon of melted butter and one-half teaspoon of grated orange rind. Beat all for two minutes and then turn it into six greased "wells" in a pop-over pan. Bake for about 25 minutes in a low oven. Serve with the following:

Sauce for Orange Puff Dessert: Put two egg whites into a bowl with a few grains of salt and beat till very stiff. Then, still beating, add two-thirds of a cup of powdered sugar, the juice of one large orange, and the juice of one-half lemon. This sauce must be served immediately or it will separate. (Note: If the housewife has no pastry flour for making the puffs she may add two level tablespoons of dry cornstarch powder to one cup of ordinary bread flour, which makes the bread flour almost like pastry flour.)

CHAPTER XVIII

They had already taken a step towards the door when it was suddenly opened. The second detective stood to one side, as Itash walked in. He was looking very pale and solemn, but, as usual, neatly and correctly dressed. Cleo would have rushed towards him, but for the restraining hand upon her shoulder.

"Sammy!" she cried. "You see what they're doing to me. They are taking me to prison. Tell them about it, please. Give them money. Tell them I am sorry. Anything. And tell me that it is finished with Yvonne. Take me away with you, Sammy."

He looked at her without changing a muscle of his countenance. Then he turned to the detective.

"Where are you taking her?" he enquired.

"To Police Headquarters," the man replied. "And it's about time we were off."

"Do not let me detain you," Itash said coldly. "Police Headquarters is a very good place indeed for that young lady. She was once a friend of mine, but she is no longer. She tried to murder the young lady who was my companion last night. I have no wish to stand in the way of her punishment."

Mademoiselle Cleo seemed to have became suddenly calm. Only her eyes burned as she looked towards Itash.

"It is thus you speak to me?" she moaned. "You have not pity. No longer any love."

"It is finished," he pronounced.

She beckoned to Slattery, who stepped quickly forward. The officer would have thrust his hand over her mouth but he was too late. She whispered for a moment in Grant's ear. Then she turned to the detective.

"I am quite ready," she announced. "This time you have only a small charge against me. I shot to frighten, not to kill. Farewell, Itash. You have done an evil day's work for yourself. If you knew those which I have shared with our friend, Mr. Slattery, here, you would not stand like a piece of marble and watch me being led away to prison while you go to take the dejeuner with Yvonne. You would be shaking in every limb, Itash—shaking, I tell you. For in your heart you know very well that you are a coward."

"Secrets!" Itash repeated scornfully. "What secrets could you know? I have given you my caresses—never my confidence."

She threw her head back and laughed.

"So you did not understand me over the telephone? Go and call on your friend, Mr. Cornelius Blunn," she jeered. "He knows."

"Say, young lady, I have been very patient, but orders are orders," the detective declared savagely. "Out of this room you go and if you utter another word you go with my hand over your mouth."

"It pleases me to depart," she replied haughtily. "Au revoir Mr. Slattery. Come and see me in prison. There is more to be—"

The detective's patience was at an end. His hand closed upon her lips. He pushed her from the room. In the hallway they heard her muffled laugh.

"Gentlemen," Itash said, "I am sorry that you should have been troubled in this matter. I did not know that it was to the apartments of Mr. Grant Slattery that I was coming."

"Mademoiselle Cleo is an acquaintance of mine from Monte Carlo," Grant reminded him. "You doubtless remember our little supper party there."

"With much pleasure," Itash assented. "Nevertheless, Mr. Slattery, a word of caution may not be out of place. The young lady is not altogether trustworhty. Her tempers are violent. She is not truthful. She is, indeed, dangerous."

"Then we are both well rid of her, Count," Grant observed drily.

"It grieves me to speak ill of one of her sex," the young man continued, drawing on his gloves. "Mademoiselle Cleo was once my very good friend. I tire of her and take another, and she will not accept the situation. It was foolish."

"Very foolish indeed," Grant assented.

"The stiuation," Itash proceeded, "was probably clear to you when I had the honor of inviting you to supper at the Carlton at Monte Carlo. You are man of the world, Mr. Slattery. I have been told that Mademoiselle has made scandalous talk of me. You will understand from whence comes the idea to speak evil."

"The whole situation," Grant assured him, "is most transparent."

Itash bowed low.

"I should not mention this matter at all," he went on, "but we, who are in the Diplomatic Service of our country—you, Mr. Slattery, I believe were once thus engaged—can so easily have mischief made around us—a malicious word, a suggestion of a confidence betrayed, it is sufficient to do much harm. You will bear this in mind, Mr. Slattery, if, by chance, Mademoiselle should have come here with mischievous intent."

"I will bear it in mind," Grant promised.

"No word concerning the affairs of my country, no single sentence of political import of any sort whatsoever has ever passed my lips when in the presence of Mademoiselle Cleo," Itash declared. "Therefore what she says she knows, she invents. I wish you good morning, gentlemen."

He made a dignified and leisurely exit. They heard the door close behind him, heard him pass down the corridor towards the lift.

"What did she whisper to you?" Stoneham asked.

"She was a trifle cryptic," Grant replied. "She spoke in French. What she said was simply this—'The secret of the world is to be found in two small volumes hidden in the box of gold, in number twelve hundred and eight.' Box of gold! What the mischief was she driving at?"

There was a sudden change in Stoneham's expression.

"Why, Grant," he exclaimed, "haven't you ever heard the story about Cornelius Blunn's father?"

"I've heard one version of it," Grant acknowledged. "Tell me yours."

"You remember his history, of course. He was a great friend of the Kaiser Wilhelm's—one of the war party, one of those who really believed in Germany and her divine right to rule the world. The Treaty of Versailles broke his heart. On his deathbed he wrote a letter, which he placed in a gold casket which the Kaiser had once given him, containing the freedom of the city of Berlin. The idea always has been that that letter was a charge upon his son son to see that some day or other Germany was avenged. Cornelius Blunn carries that casket always with him. If there really does exist any document in the world, any secret treaty or understanding between Germany and, say, Japan, having for its object a consummation of this injunction, why that's the likeliest place in the whole world to find it."

"What about the twelve hundred and eight?" Grant asked.

GATEWAY THEATRE

The Paramount Long Island studio recently took on the appearance of a dancing school during the filming of Rudolph Valentino's production, "A Sainted Devil."

Fifty couples were put through the steps of the Argentine tango under the able direction of the star for the big cabaret scene in the picture, which is being shown today and tomorrow at Gateway Theatre. This cabaret is one of the smartest in Buenos Aires, and, naturally, the tango is the predominate dance. The ordinary ballroom extras are only proficient in the fox trot and waltz, so it was necessary to train all the people who appear in this sequence of "A Sainted Devil."

Nita Naldi, Helen D'Algy, Louise Lagrange, Dagmar Godowsky, George Siegman, Raphael Bongini, Antonio D'Algy are but a few in the strong caste of supporting players.

DOBINSON PLAYERS

"The Hole in the Wall," which last week scored the biggest hit of the Dobinson Players' season of stock in Glendale, will open again on Wednesday at the Tuesday Afternoon club theatre, it is announced. Thousands saw this play last week and voted it one of the most thrilling melodramas they had ever witnessed.

The theme of "The Hole in the Wall" is spiritualism, as applied by a gang of clever crooks to gain their ends. The chief character is Jean Oliver, a woman paying the penalty for a crime of which she is innocent. To vindicate herself she uses this crook gang and gains freedom in a most unique and dramatic way. The role is played by Mary Worth.

"The Hole in the Wall" was written by Fred Jackson, who has a long line of successful plays to his credit. It had a highly successful run in New York.

THE GLENDALE

"The Fast Worker," with Reginald Denny, continues at the Glendale Theatre.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY GOES COASTING

One day Uncle Butter, the goat called to see Uncle Wiggily in the bunny gentleman's hollow stump bungalow.

"How are you, Mr. Longears?" asked the goat.

"Very well, thank you," answered the rabbit. "And how are you"

"I think I'd feel better if there was a little excitement," bleated the goat. "Look over there on the coasting hill. Doesn't it make you wish you were young again to see the animal boys and girls sliding down hill?" and Mr. Butter pointed to where Sammie and Susie Littletail, Jackie and Bertie Bow Wow and Johnnie and Billie Bushytail were having grand fun on the snow covered hill.

"Yes, I believe I should like a little coast myself," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Well, why don't you go then?" asked the goat. "I'd like it also. There is a little hill back of your bungalow. You don't have to go where all the boys and girls are. They might laugh to see two such old chaps as you and I sliding down hill. We can go coasting by ourselves."

"The trouble is that we have no sled," said Uncle Wiggily. "It has been many a year since I had a sled of my own. Once I had a blue one. Ah, those were the happy days!" and he twinkled his pink nose reflective like, but at the same time modestly.

"Say! Look here!" suddenly cried Uncle Butter. "We don't need a sled to coast on."

"What could we use in place of a sled?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know.

"Nurse Jane's big shiny tin dishpan," answered the goat. "Here it is," and, skipping out to the kitchen, he brought in the pan. Nurse Jane wasn't there then, or Uncle Butter never would have dared to do a thing like that. But the muskrat lady housekeeper had gone to the movies.

"Say, that will make a fine sled!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Come on and we'll go coasting before Nurse Jane gets back."

Going to the hill behind the bungalow, where no one would see them, the two old gentlemen animal friends sat in the dishpan. it was a tight squeeze, but they got in somehow. Uncle Wiggily sat in front, looking down hill and Uncle Butter sat in back, looking up hill. Thus they had their backs one to the other.

"All aboard! Push off!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Toot! Toot!"

Uncle Butter dug his hands in the snow at the top of the hill and gave a push. The dishpan began to slide. Being of shiny tin it was as slippery as the steel runners of a sled.

"Here we go! Hurray! Hurray!" cried Uncle Wiggily. Faster and faster the dishpan sled slid down hill. "Isn't this fun? I'm glad you thought of it," cried Uncle Wiggily. Uncle Butter didn't answer. "I guess the wind is whistling so loudly in his ears that he can't hear," thought the rabbit.

Uncle Wiggily reached the bottom of the hill in his dishpan sled. Out he jumped and turned around to look at his goat friend.

"That was a fine ride!" laughed the rabbit.

But Uncle Butter wasn't there! He had fallen out of the dishpan half way down the hill, and up there he was waving his paw at Uncle Wiggily and bleating:

"Hey! I didn't have any coast at all! I slipped out when you got going so fast. Come on back and give me another turn."

"Ho! Ho!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "No wonder you didn't answer when I spoke to you—it's because you weren't there." Then he pulled the dishpan sled to the top of the hill and the next time Uncle Butter held on to the handles so tightly that he didn't fall out. And he and the bunny had fine fun coasting in the pan before Nurse Jane came home and took it away from them.

"But it was good while it lasted," bleated Uncle Butter, as he took home some snowballs to fry for his supper. And if the cake knife doesn't slip off the loaf of bread when it is trying to tag the marmalade, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily painting his roof.

RESIDENTS OF WASHINGTON COMPLAIN

Object To Big Snow Drifts On Streets Of Capital City Of Nation

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Five days of a snow blockade has left "beautiful" Washington, the capital city of the greatest nation on earth, as the men of Congress love to call it, in a decidedly dilapidated condition. The streets are literally strewn with abandoned automobiles. One stood in the center of Pennsylvania avenue, pride thoroughfare of the country, for something like seventy-two hours before a wrecking crew was able to dig it from the drifts.

While other eastern cities have been digging themselves successfully from the new year's snow blanket, Washington, the national capital, has found itself without the means to clear the streets, or even to make pathways for pedestrians and vehicles at the intersecting highways.

All of which, the residents of the city declare, points out the privilege of living in a city governed almost entirely by the Congress of the United States. Not one penny can be spent by the three commissioners of the District of Columbia without the "advice and consent" of the House of Representatives as well as the Senate.

Lambast Congress

Washingtonians were feeling today like the treaty of Versailles. Yet without reservations of any character, they were lambasting Congress hip and thigh, led by the local papers whose editorial tirades are couched in anything but the diplomatic language supposed to prevail in the capitol.

The general tone of these editorial complaints is that Washington long has been a thoroughly neglected community and that it is time for the country to do something about it.

The hopeful sign is that certain senators and representatives are beginning to complain. These senators and congressmen, strange as it may seem, are the possessors of limousines and they have had to bounce and crash to the capitol these last few days over mountain peaks of ice and snow. Sunday brought a thaw and everyone thought the worst was over. But there was a sudden drop in temperature and by Monday morning the slush had been transformed into solid ice.

Times Have Changed

Time was when the senators and congressmen laughed at the troubles of the man in the automobile. They said walking or street car riding was good enough for any red blooded American and nothing had been done to pander to the "whims" of the rich. But those days appear gone forever now. Congress has been motor-equipped, the clerks and secretaries having cars even if the statesmen do not. So the howl that has gone up from Capitol Hill may prove wholesome in the end.

Congress says it has appropriated enough money to clear up the present snow. The commissioners say that if they used up the entire annual appropriation on this storm they would be in an awful fix the rest of the winter.

Washington is the poorest lighted city of its class in the entire country. Visiting motorists are amazed at the blackness of the Washington nights and do not wonder at the high rate of automobile deaths. The streets of the city are ragged and many of them dirty most of the time. The residents of Washington pay the taxes that Congress levies upon them but Congress will not permit the residents to say where, when or how the money shall go. Washington may be considered a city beautiful, but it has many dark and rough corners.

LOS ANGELES

By Southland News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—Apparatus used in raising $1 bills to $10 bills was uncovered by police yesterday and two men, Petro Montoya, 27 and Frank Brown, 22, were arrested after they are alleged to have tried to pass bogus bills at a local dance hall. They were turned over today to federal officials.

Members of the advisory boards of the Salvation Army of Southern California will hold their annual meeting tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Visa del Arroyo hotel in Pasadena, to discuss the program for the organization's work this year and to report on 1924 activities.

Title to a deseot homestead claim of 320 acres, twenty-five miles east of Victorville, has been granted to Mrs. Rose Koehly by the commissioner of the land office. The grant ends sixteen years of effort on the part of Mrs. Koehly to obtain official possession of the land. Year after year she was unfortunate in her attempts to comply with the law, but because of her indu try and good faith a protest against granting final proof on the Koehly claim was dismissed by the land office.

Active campaigning in the four county sanitation districts for favorable passage of bond issues which will be used to construct a metoopolitan sewage disposal system at a cost of approximately $12,500,000 will be under the supervision of the four district chairmen appointed recently by R. F. McClellan, chairman of the county board of supervisors.

Boy Scouts Spend Day In Camp Taking Tests

Eighteen members of the Grand View Boy Scouts, troop 17, accompanied by Scoutmaster George W. Thomas, spent Saturday at the Boy Scout camp at Griffith park, on Los Feliz road. Some of the boys made the trip on bicycles and others accompanied Scoutmaster Thomas in his machine. They left at 10:30 o'clock and returned in the afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Fifteen scout tests, such as fireplace building, cooking contests, stalking games, tag, pioneering and constructing bridges, and first aid occupied the day. Bruce Maier won the fireplace-building contest. William Maguire found a bicycle and sweaters belonging to members of the troop which had been taken by other parties.

AMERICA WINS WAR CLAIMS BATTLE

Logical Persuasion Conquers English In Arguments On Debt Share

By DAVID LAWRENCE
By Special Leased Wire to The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—America has won a battle of persuasion with Great Britain on the subject of equities and rights growing out of the unratified Versailles treaty and when the facts and texts of the arguments some day are disclosed it will be apparent that the British came to their conclusions because they recognized the contentions of the United States as eminently just.

Technically the British have not admitted that the United States under her treaty with Berlin enjoys the same rights as America would have had if the Versailles treaty had been ratified but the question becomes irrelevant at the moment because the British have accepted America's view as matter of "equity."

From this viewpoint of the Washington government it matters little what the basis of Britain's acceptance may be so long as the result—namely, acceptance—is accomplished. When the United States argues that as a matter of equity as well as right she is entitled to her share of the payments made by Germany so that claims due American citizens for damages incurred during the war may be settled, the only important thing is that the claims shall be paid.

For, in agreeing to accept payments as a matter of equity, the United States in no sense abandons any rights. Two men may get themselves into a quarrel and even a law suit and one will insist that as a matter of contract right a payment is not due but if his services were rendered or value had been received the settlement is made on a basis of equity.

Gentleman's Agreement

So also with governments. It would have been absurd, in the view of American officials if after what the United States did to turn scales of war the allied governments now should say that because of legal technicality due to the failure of America to ratify the Versailles treaty, all the rights which were due America under that pact had been lost. The rights of the United States were not derived from the Versailles treaty in the opinion of secretary Hughes but from the fact that America was a co-belligerent in the international.

There is also involved another point of international law of great significance. Can two nations make a treaty which deprive a third nation of its rights.

Logical Reasoning

Few persons conversant with the customs of treaty-making would have blamed Great Britain if she had insisted that her rights had not been impaired. Indeed, under the principle of the favored nation, one country does not grant to another rights which she is unwilling as a rule to give to a third power. The principle of equality is recognized among sovereign nations and no two or three get together to interfere with the rights of another power without encountering just protest.

America would have accepted the Versailles treaty with reservations but for a controversy over the sections relating to the covenant of the league of nations, a device which related to the enforcement of the treaty rather than to any of the basic grants made by Germany to the allied and associated powers by reason of their partnership in receiving the assets of Germany. America considers that partnership still inadvisable and insists upon a share and a participation in Germany's assets.

Technical Attitude

So far as the nature of American claims is concerned, they have practically all been adjudicated by the German-American claims commission and will stand the acid test of both law and equity, and the payments are due American citizens who suffered losses. There can be no comparison between the method adopted in computing these claims and that used abroad in calculating reparations. As for the costs of the army of occupation this it has been agreed before, was a valid claim and should be given priority.

So the situation today is that the allied governments have given up their technical attitude with reference to the right of the United States to be paid for her claims and have transferred their argument to the problem of equity. As long as provision is made for the payment of American claims there will be no disposition here to quibble about the mental paths through which the European governments travel in reaching their decision to share the Dawes plan payments with the United States.

WAR!

A Series of Seven Articles on War: With a local-civic objective by "Mr. A. Studious Veteran."

Article Four

Article Three briefly outlined the mental effect of the war upon those who were closest to the conflict and implied that an association of kindred spirits bound together by the common cataclysm should by all means be a powerful instrument for service in the life and welfare of its community and country.

Fortunately each group of American defenders has attempted this very thing and the nation owes much of its greatness to the devoted sons and daughters thus organized. None can gainsay the fact Revolutionary patriots moulded well the destinies of America for many years. This work for Americanism in its broadest sense was for fifty years carried on by the Civil war contingent in a manner beyond reproach.

The Spanish war veterans, relatively small in number, have more than made good their share of the sustained effort as evidenced by the numerous positions of trust and influence ably filled by them throughout the country and notably in Southern California at the present time.

Throughout the nation the World War associations are even now being welded together in the most advanced organization for Americanism possible. Their earnest work in training youth and alien, in civic progress and national safety, freedom, education, in fact in all lines of public and home welfare are well known.

While it is true that time sufficient to arrive at the maximum degree of efficiency has not elapsed there are few municipalities in the country which have not felt the power for good exercised by such an organization.

Glendale is no exception to this statement. Probably she is more fortunate in this particular than the majority of cities in her class.

It is difficult to express the appreciation due this splendid dozen societies for the great and unselfish work they continually carry on—and the amount they do is limited only by their resources in members and income.

There can be no doubt each and every one of these organizations would welcome to their fold any and all who are eligible to membership by reason of service or heredity. Likewise all of them present great opportunity for a service thoroughly unselfish. It is also true that the friendly associations found in these societies and the pleasant social functions which are incident to their work are well worthy of our consideration.

CAPITAL HEARS SCOTT CASE TO SMILE

Divorce 'Revelations' Only Mildly Shock People Of Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Washington has been but mildly shocked by the "revelations" in the divorce proceedings of Representative Frank D. Scott of Alpena, Michigan. Washington doesn't claim to be purer than any other city its size in this country. Perhaps the capital is just a little more liberal in its views than most places for after all it has what is called a cosmopolitan atmosphere, being made up of many persons from many climes. Some of the climes are perhaps just a bit warmer than the others.

Washington also enjoys many diplomatic privileges, and perhaps one might say immunities. To many of those stationed here Washington is "away from home" and that may account in some measure for a certain lack of formality in the lives of some of the capital sojourners.

Senators and congressmen as a rule do not have homes here. The percentage of those who do is higher among the senators than the representatives, for the former are elected for six years and can make fairly definite plans, while the poor mere congressmen get only a two years' lease of life and have to regard themselves as decidedly temporary.

The result is that most of the national law makers, who hotly resent the idea that they are law breakers, are compelled to live in hotels, some of them rated as fashionable and some decidedly commonplace. The Scotts, full of the joie de vivre, as the French say, chose to reside in one of the most fashionable of all the city's residential hotels—a vast structure, which is a small city in itself and where at one time no less than six of the ten members of President Harding's cabinet had their abode.

Life What It's Made

Life in this hotel is largely what the residents choose to make it. They can be as quiet as ever they were on Main street of their own home town, or they can join in the diplomatic and official affairs, and "throw a party" at almost any time of the day and far into the night with a modest amount of discretion.

Washington has not been shocked at the statements in some of Mrs. Scott's letters that her better half has been indulging in the festive game of draw poker with some of his congressional colleagues. The right to play poker has been an inalienable one with the national law makers ever since the first days of the republic. The playing is not so open as it was and possibly the stakes are not so high as in the old days.

There are comparatively few persons in official life today who remember the famous old Chamberlain hotel and club which was the headquarters of the poker playing set and where one could get a game to one's liking, no matter how ambitious the player might be.

While poker playing in the capital is not so picturesque today it is by no means a lost or unknown art. Nor is it an unusual thing for some participants in the game to have to take an occasional congressional I. O. U.

Mysterious Trunks

For congressmen and senators sometimes get over their heads just as do ordinary mortals and the congressional immunities do not run against losses at cards.

Washington is catholic enough to admit also that there is some drinking within her official confines. Whether or not representative Scott brought in liquor from Panama under the "courtesy of the port" custom no one here seems to know or to care. Plenty of liquor can be obtained without such a violation of privilege. Washington does recall, however, the story that not so many moons ago one congressman, returning from a trip to the Indies brought back seventeen trunks of "baggage." Washington knows also that while there may be some "well dressed" at the capitol, there is none so well as to take seventeen trunks with him on a two weeks' junket.

Washington just smiles at the troubles of the Scotts and would like to see them both back in the capital again. They were "live ones."

Tropico Church Will Observe Anniversary

Arrangements are being made by the Tropico Presbyterian church for the celebration of the twenty-first anniversary of its organization which will be held Friday night, January 16, at the church. The social gathering will be held from 7:30 to 10 o'clock. After the social hour the climax will come in the presentation of the twenty-one years' history of the church by twenty-one people in twenty-one minutes. This will be followed by the cutting of the mammoth birthday cake. The oldest member present will have the honor of blowing out the candles on the cake. At the service Sunday, January 18, Dr. Winnard will speak on the theme, "The Spiritual Significance of Twenty-One Years," and at the night service short talks will be given by charter members, old-timers and some newcomers.

COEDS CONDEMN REGULATION

SANTA ANA, Jan. 12.—Uniform dress regulations at the Santa Ana Polytechnic high school are emphatically taboo. Voicing unanimous disapproval of all "interference with personal rights," and firing a broadside into the ranks of "nervy," meddling people, local co-eds are of one opinion concerning the action of Assemblywoman Eleanor Miller of Pasadena who intends to introduce in the present session of the Legislature a bill to empower school boards to curb extremes of dress among high school girls. The girls are so strongly opposed to uniform dress that they say it would dampen school spirit. Twice in recent years the school has voted down proposals for dress regulation. And Santa Ana girls are unanimous in declaring they are going to remain free from regulations without regard to what Mrs. Miller thinks about reform.

ANAHEIM DOCTOR CHIEF

ANAHEIM, Jan. 12.—Dr. H. D. Newkirk of Anaheim has assumed the presidency of the Orange County Medical association. Dr. Bessie Martell and Dr. Dexter Ball are respectively vice-president and secretary-treasurer.

STILL INJURES OPERATORS

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 12.—Two men were badly burned about the face, hands and arms when a still they were operating caught fire. S. P. Littrell of this city and Frank Husk, Santa Ana, were treated for burns at the hospital. They told officials they were hurt when the still exploded. Both men work for the Mutual Refining company. The still was one used for making gasoline.

WATER SUPPLY GOOD

SANTA BARBARA, Jan. 12.—The reservoir back of Gibraltar dam is now half full, according to A. R. Poett. This, according to city officials, is enough to provide the city with water for eighteen months without further rainfall. No water has been running into the reservoir since last June while the city has allowed sufficient water to leave to water stock on ranches below the dam, according to Poett.

INDEX TO CO-OPERATIVE DEPARTMENT

PAGE 6 OF THIS ISSUE OF THE EVENING NEWS

Of course when you want to buy merchandise of any kind you are anxious to patronize a Glendale dealer. When you wish to employ professional skill it is your desire to secure a local man. When repair work is needed it is to your advantage to have the work done by mechanics near home.

The object of this index column is to refer you to the CO-OPERATIVE DEPARTMENT on Page 6 of this issue, where you will find listed a large number of merchants, tradesmen and professional men who are real boosters for Glendale. While the Community Loyalty Section will appear in The Evening News one day every week, yet readers are advised to cut it out and hold it for reference for the purpose of ascertaining names and locations of business firms in Glendale.

FLYWEIGHTS WILL FIGHT AT VERNON

Jimmy McLarnin, La Barba Ready for Big Battle Tomorrow Night

By A. S. HALL
Of The Evening News Staff.

Fight fans throughout Southern California, which includes a goodly number who live in Glendale, are on edge today anxiously awaiting the gong that will start the first prolonged fight card under the new regime at Jack Doyle's Vernon arena tomorrow night. The main event, a ten-round affair, will bring together Jimmy McLarnin, Irish midget, and Fidel La Barba, who held the Olympic flyweight championship until he turned pro.

Both scrappers will have no trouble making the flyweight limit of 118 pounds at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, according to reports from the training camps of the principals. Many who saw the four-round fight put up by McLarnin and La Barba at Vernon several months ago are tipping off the less fortunate ringworms that there will be something doing every minute the two are standing on th canvas. Their first meeting is still a pleasant memory to all who witnessed the bout.

Both After Crown

The elongated battle will not be new stuff to McLarnin, who has met some fast boys stepping the long route, while La Barba has centered his training under the tutelage of George Blake, builder of champions, to go any length desired. The Los Angeles midget stepped fast and furious in the four-round affairs and will be just as speedy and just as strong at the end of the long trail as he was when the final gong sounded for the shorter battles.

The two flyweights are evenly matched, both are past masters at the "hit-and-run" game and both pack some mighty wallops in their dimunitive mitts. Tomorrow's battle is looked upon by the two flyweights as a stepping stone to bigger things, such as a defi hurled at Pancho Villa, present holder of the title.

Another bright spot on the card tomorrow night will be the semi-windup, scheduled to go six rounds with Johnny Lamar and Julius Jessick exchanging blows. Young Jessick is another fighting youth who got his start under that well-known trainer, George Blake, at L. A. A. C., and is anxious to make his initial appearance at Vernon, one the ringworms will remember for many moons.

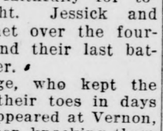
Have Met Before

Lamar carries some mean wallops and also knows how to use his head as well as his hands. He has been improving a great deal in the last few weeks and has been training faithfully for tomorrow's fight. Jessick and Lamar have met over the four-round route, and their last battle was a corker.

Young George, who kept the fight fans on their toes in days past when he appeared at Vernon, and who has been knocking them right and left all over the state in recent months, returns to Vernon tomorrow night to meet Ernie Owens in a six-round battle occupying the special spot. Owens is favored by the dopester as the better man, but many who have seen Young George in action before are counting on him to slip over a one-two that will spell victory. The bout should be marked with lots of speed.

Bobby Bridges and Sailor Ashmore hook up in one of the preliminary four-round battles. Sailor Ashmore was a main-eventer until several months ago, and is starting all over again in the new order of things. Bridges has several wins to his credit and has appeared on a number of cards at Vernon. Another four-round preliminary will complete the card, making thirty rounds of milling for Vernon's first program under the new boxing law.

BASEBALL



Conweight hurled the Burbank team to victory yesterday when he struck out seventeen men and allowed only six hits in the game against Barry Hatters at Burbank. The Burbankers rolled up six runs while the Batters succeeded in getting two across the plate.

Pasadena Merchants took the first game of a series with the St. Louis Colored Giants yesterday 7 to 5. Pertica, on the mound for the Merchants, was touched for seventeen hits, while the Merchants gathered eleven off Bell and Gurley.

Gilmore Oilers smothered Pacific Electric crew at Gilmore park yesterday, 5 to 1. Ferdie Schupp hurled for the oilers, with Dill on the mound for the trolley crew. The teams were even—Stephen on hits, each aggregation getting five.

Van Nuys edged up a little closer to the top yesterday by beating Owensmouth, 15 to 3, at Owensmouth. O'Connell hurled for the winners and allowed only eight hits, while Brown was touched for nineteen bingles.

Add one more name to the hall of fame for baseballe pitchers. Pat O'Tero, on the mound for the Hawthorne aggregation, hurled a no-hit, no-run, no-walk game against Maywood, striking out thirteen. Hawthorne touched Palmer for fourteen hits, getting eight runs.

Azusa defeated Huntington Park yesterday at Azusa, when Dick Bonnelly struck out eleven, and allowed only five hits. The score was 3 to 1.

WALTER SCHMIDT
HE WAS A GREAT HELP TO YOUNG PITCHERS; KNOWING EVERY BATTER'S WEAKNESS

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Written for The Evening News.

The other day Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh club, wound a towel about his head again and did some more housecleaning. Among other things he decided he didn't need Wallie Schmidt, veteran catcher, any longer.

Wallie was called in and tipped off that he was due to walk the plank.

He turned over his cutlass, but as he climbed up on the plank to walk it he hung onto his big glove and his head. And when he leaped off the end of the springboard he landed on the island of Receptive Mood instead of in the waters of Oblivion.

In other words, Mr. Walter Schmidt is not done as a ball player. The chances are 16 to 1 that he will be doing some backstopping and more coaching for another big league club when baseball gets under way the coming spring.

Schmidt may not be the best catcher in the game, but he is one of the best. He is one of the headiest receivers in the business. His knowlelge of the opposing batters and his ability to read young pitchers and help them make the most of their stuff has helped many a young slab artist get away in good shape and remain in the ranks of the winners.

Zach Wheat, one of the greatest natural hitters in the game, paid Schmidt a pretty compliment one time when he remarked that he never tried to outguess a pitcher, but that Wallie Schmidt did keep him guessing as to what kind of a ball the catcher had asked for.

Burleigh Grimes, shrewd veteran of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is frank in his admiration of Schmidt, who gave him many pointers when Grimes was his teammate with the Pirates back in 1916 and 1917.

Schmidt is one of baseball's footballs. He broke into the game with Indianapolis and had played with Fort Smith, Helena, Memphis, Winston-Salem and Roanoke when the Cleveland club gave him a trial in 1910. The Cleveland bosses decided he wasn't worth hanging onto and sold him to the Athletics. About the time Schmidt thought he had finally found a home, Connie Mack shipped him to San Francsico. That was in 1911. He labored there five years before he drew another chance in the big time—with Pittsburgh.

He proceeded to take rank as one of the best catchers in the National league, despite the fact that he couldn't raise his batting average above two dollars and a half. In 1920 he showed a burst of Ruthlessness at the bat, hitting .329. This probably was because he had been a holdout, had reported late and felt he had to get his usual number of hits for the season.

He was born in the thriving town of Coal Hill, Ark., which, for that reason, claims its place in the baseball sun.

JAPAN GIVES TREES

The town of Warrenton, Ore., is to be beautified with 1000 cherry trees, the gift of the Japanese minister to the Nnited States to the manager of the city. The trees are identical with those that have made Japanese cherry blossoms famous in opera and literature.

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By JOSEPH L. KELLEY
Of The Evening News Staff.

Wrestlers have started playing hide-and-go-seek again. 'Strangler' Lewis loses in endurance contest with Wayne (Big) Munn, who measures somewhere around general proportions of two-ton truck. Munn hails from Nebraska, where they train husking corn all night after a good day's work. They don't raise any weaklings in that state. A return match may be expected. One wrestler can keep the boys P. T. Barnum made famous handing shekels through box-office all winter if he has enough endurance. Lewis put on an all-winter mat bout in Chicago a few years ago when we were doing sports for Chicago Tribune. He kept the Loop guessing as long as Lake Michigan made icicles.

Joseph L. Kelley

To win average strangling bout means less than to win high dictatorship in Russia. Just a question of being able to work up a good sweat and Hurculian muscles. You tickle me and I'll tickle you is their motto. In that way they winter in California and summer in Chicago.

Lewis says he suffered sprain of the sacroiliac, whatever that is. They have to have some sort of an alibi when they lose so it might as well be that as anything else. Can't stay in New York all winter on a broken sacroiliac but it made good reading for fans and will bring Lewis and Munn together later to insure wintering in Big Town.

Tommy Carter and Johnny Adams made a flying start in lightweight division but both took record flops shortly after starting. Adams beat Oakland Frankie Burns in the elimination contest and then every ham-lightweight on Coast used Johnny as punching bag. He was knocked out since more times than Fred Fulton has laid down.

Tommy Carter punched him all over Hollywood ring in one round and Johnny was twenty minutes coming to. Now Carter gets whipped by Ace Hudkins and so the merry whirl goes round. After looking all Coast prospects over we arrive at conclusion there is only one real lightweight on Coast and he is Spud Myers.

Spud is a fighter at heart and he's fighting all the time he's inside four ropes. Too bad he's short on reach and stature. Tom Charkey had same disadvantages and he was a bad actor in the ring. Maybe Spud will overcome those handicaps with some of Sharkey's bulldog tactics.

These ten and twelve-round affairs should bring out the best material on Pacific Coast. It also should bring from East some of its cream in mitt world. It seems Hollywood Legion isn't exactly keen about longer affairs. Six rounds was as far as feature went last Friday.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Commissioner Landis is not yet through with his investigation of the O'Connell-Dolan bribery scandal. In response to requests he made public the evidence in the case.

It is believed by those who know something of the amount of attention Judge Landis has been giving to the case that he is still working to ascertain whether there is more behind the matter than appeared on the surface of O'Connell's statement in which he sought to involve Dolan, Young, Frisch and Kelly of the Giants in the affair.

So far the investigation conducted in conjuction with President Heydler of the National league, has failed to disclose any evidence which would confirm O'Connell's statement that the four other Giants were in on the affair. O'Connell, however, has reiterated his charge since the others were exonerated. This makes Kelly's consent to play on a western basketball team with O'Connell all the more inexplicable. If Kelly believes O'Connell guilty, he should not mix with him in any sort of athletics, and if O'Connell believes Kelly squirmed out of the bribery affair, leaving him holding the bag, it seems strange that he would consent to play on a team with Kelly.

The evidence on which O'Connell and Dolan were suspended came almost entirely from O'Connell. Dolan, throughout the hearings, was never able to "remember" anything. That is, not until he had been thrown out of baseball. Then he started to remember, and threatened to bring suit against Commissioner Landis. The suit, however, still is hanging fire.

O'Connell made direct statements as to the men alleged to have been involved in the affair. If there is further evidence which is likely to convict or implicate somebody else, there is not much chance that it will get before the public, because if there are "higher ups," as is believed by some, Judge Landis will not be satisfied until he has reached them.

The fact that Dolan had been the commissioner in 1923 did not help him in his later plight. Dolan was warned at that time that he had better watch his step in the future.

It is presumed that the judge will be willing to present such excerpts from the stenographic report of his hearings—when he presents anything—as will bear directly on the question why O'Connell and Dolan were suspended and why Frisch, Kelly and Young were exonerated. In Kelly's case it is said that Kelly's and O'Connell's stories were wholly at variance, and that between O'Connell's statement and those of Frisch and Young there were up and down denials, with O'Connell unable to offer any proof of what he said.

PREDICTS NURMI MAY LOSE TITLE

Failure to Stick Close to Training and Heavy Schedule Harmful

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—While the general excitement is at its height and the question of the hour is whether the gentleman in question eats fish for breakfast and keeps that schoolgirl complexion with shinola, it might be mentioned that Paavo Nurmi may be riding for a fall. He has allowed himself to be inveigled into accepting invitations by the carload lots and somewhere along the general right of way, it is quite possible that an American crowd will watch him run second behind some worthy young man, present identity unknown.

This stunning event may happen no later than a week or ten days from this moment. On Thursday night next, he will go to the post at Madison Square Garden against a plausible field in a 3,000 meter run. The distance has been shortened from two miles at Nurmi's request, although it is fact, not fancy, that he can run any distance from a quarter mile to ten faster than any man the world has known. It might appear from this that Nurmi sees something coming.

Two days later he is to step out in a special mile and a quarter race at the Illinois A. C. games in Chicago. The distance was increased the extra two furlongs also at Nurmi's request. He evidently has no intention of trying to repeat his Olympic program, in which he ran and won races at 1500, 3000, 5000 and 10,000 meters, with heats, in the space of one week. The distances he will run at the two meets are not markedly dissimilar.

The reason is not far to seek. Nurmi has realized within the last forty-eight hours that he has bitten off a lumberjack's mouthful in agreeing to run a hard race here on Thursday night, climb aboard an outgoing train and compete again in Chicago within forty-eight hours.

TROOP NO. 3 WINS SCOUT GRID GAME

City Championship Decided Saturday Afternoon; Final Score 26-0

Glendale troop, No. 3, copped the Scout football championship Saturday, when they swamped troop No. 1 on Harvard field, 26 to 0. The winners played good football and at all times stood far above their opponents, who lacked experience and practice.

Dewey McCourt scored the first touchdown when he trotted through an open field sixty yards for a touchdown. McCourt scored two touchdowns, and both Bosserman and Ayeres crashed over for one. While the Troop 3 boys made yards at will, the losers scored only two earned first downs. Nicholson at full and Klein at end played good games for the winners. The score by quarters:

Troop 3	14	6	6	0	26

Touchdowns — McCourt (2), Tyres, Bosserman. Points after touchdown—Nicholson (2). Referee—Needham. Head linesman—Russell.

Fair Sex Barred From Bronxville Golf Club

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Women golfers will be taboo, according to the rules drafted for the newly incorporated Bronxville Country club at Mount Vernon, members of the more deadly sex not only being barred from playing, but as guests of the club as well.

It also developed that caddies will wear red blouses and white knickers, and members will sport colored blazers just as they do at Saint Andrews, Scotland.

'Strangler' Lewis Able To Leave K.C. Hospital

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 12.—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, who was seriously injured in the bout with Wayne (Big) Munn here Thursday night, was able to leave the hospital this morning. He was removed to his home in an ambulance. His physicians say rest is the only treatment for his injuries.

STRAND TO PORTLAND

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—Paul Strand, former Salt Lake outfielder, has been sold to the Portland Pacific Coast league club by the Philadelphia Americans, it was announced here today. Strand hit forty-two homers in the Coast league in 1923, but was a "flop" with Philadelphia. Duffy Lewis, Portland manager, also announced a deal was being considered with San Francisco which would send Pitchers Keefe and Gardiner to the Seals.

GLENDALE CASEYS DEFEAT L. A. TEAM

Butler Fans Twelve, Allows Only Five Hits; Locals Win In North

Glendale Caseys maintained their hold on top place in the Southern California K. of C. league yesterday by defeating the Los Angeles council 2 to 1 at the ball park on San Fernando road, in a game featured by the pitching of "Chief" Butler for the locals. Butler struck out twelve and allowed only five hits, while the Glendale Caseys gathered six hits off Evans, who had five strikeouts to his credit.

Pat O'Shea, third baseman for the local aggregation, scored the winning run in the eighth inning when Cozington rapped out a double. O'Shea also opened the scoring for the locals in the sixth inning. Evans got a three-base hit in the third inning, sending in the only run made by the visitors. The score:

Wrestling King Waits Eustice-Zbyszko Bout

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Plans were launched here today to bring Wayne (Big) Munn, new heavyweight king of the mat to Chicago to meet a prominent contender for the title. Allen Eustace of Wakefield, Kan., and Stanislaus Zbyszko will grapple at the Coliseum Wednesday night, and the winner, according to present plans, will meet Munn. Eustace is the favorite, and fans consider him the logical opponent for Munn.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP by FAIR PLAY

By Special Leased Wire to The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The way Paul Berlenbach and his manager, Dan Hickey, have been ducking Jack Delaney points anew to the influence which one boxer has upon another when the first named fighter has the kayo sign upon the other.

Berlenbach has been doing great work since Delaney sprang a surprise by stowing him away last winter, thereby bringing to an end Paul's long string of knockouts. And Delaney, on the other hand, has not been showing so good.

Nonetheless, Dan Hickey is keeping his meal ticket away from the Bridgeport mauler. The time is coming when the two will face each other in the ring again. In fact this is the biggest thing that Berlenbach and Hickey are counting upon. Thoughts of revenge give them plenty to occupy their minds when other matters of more immediate and pressing nature are out of the way.

But not just yet. Tex Rickard tried his best to get the two into the ring at the Garden on a January date but failed. Paul will meet Tony Marullo the latter part of this month in New York; will perhaps give Larry Estridge another chance and then will take on a third bout against a good man. Then if all has gone well, Hickey will consent to have his fighter mingle once more with Delaney. And Hickey says that when the fight does come off Delaney will be sorry he ever had the impudence to send Berlenbach into dreamland.

Word comes that Spalla has received an offer to box Firpo in London and that Firpo is willing. But Spalla wants the battle to be held in Milan. One thing is certain no London promoter will risk his coin in trying to promote a match between Luis and any British heavyweight.

Asks $25,000 for Flood Survey On Santa Ana

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 12.—Assemblyman S. R. Hartranft of Orange county has prepared a bill asking an appropriation of $25,000 by the California legislature for a Santa Ana river flood control survey. Sacramento and San Joaquin valley legislators are planning to ask $500,000 for a survey of the water sources in the Sierra Madre mountains, as the first step in effecting a state storing system.

There are three kinds of months in the computation of time. The lunar month is twenty-eight days by law, but not by actual facts. It varies, sometimes being twenty-nine and one-half days, though it may differ as much as six hours in the length of time.

MAT CHAMPION IS MAN OF STRENGTH

Wayne Munn Surprised All Spectators By Tossing Lewis About Ring

By ED COCHRANE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 12.—Strength almost unbelievable in a human being has given Wayne Munn, 27 year old grappling phenomena, the world's heavyweight wrestling championship fourteen months after his first try at the mat game.

With an easy jerk of his tremendous neck, Munn broke the deadly headlocks of the former champion, "Strangler" Lewis, and then bounced that gentleman about the ring like a father jostles a promising three year old son, until deciding to smash resistance and take the title.

There was much that was uncanny in the strength of this affable, intelligent young college youth, whose medical education at the University of Nebraska was interrupted by the war. He had no science, no real knowledge of wrestling—simply a power in his 260 pound frame that towers six feet, six inches, that overwhelmed the scientific, fierce Lewis.

Tried Boxing, Too

Only thirty previous matches had been engaged in by Munn, but three of these with wrestlers of any name at all, Joe Mondt, Wallis Dugid and Ed Lewis.

"They were all easy with nothing in their famous holds to bother a person," Munn observes. "I don't know much about wrestling, just used my head and what strength I have."

Thus enters a new mat champion, who previously has been student, star tackle on the Nebraska team, soldier, automobile salesman, boxer and wrestler. Two stowaways in the pugilistic game had convinced Munn that he was not needed there. He then took to wrestling with the results that have been shown.

Takes Work Easily

To a man the 15,000 that saw Munn toss Lewis from one corner of the ring to the other, playing with him as a cat would play with a mouse before a certain juicy meal, were vociferously backing the newcomer. And Munn, laughing at the efforts of the "Strangler" to strangle him, had a jolly time of it all. His good nature, pleasant appearance and affability captured the fans.

"This beats football, medicine, bayonet work, boxing or automobile salesmanship," Munn observes good-naturedly.

The question now becomes: "Who next wants to change this husky's views?"

A storm-proof holder for pocket boxes of matches has been invented, opening it revealing a space in which a match can be lighted and shielded from wind or rain.

CHINA'S ARMY PLANS DRIVE TO NANKING

Widespread Looting Goes on As Troops Wait Word For Assault

By BERT KUHN
For International News Service.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 12.—Flushed with their easy victory here, Sun Shun Fang and Chi Hsieh plan an immediate drive against Nanking, it was announced tonight. Despite announcement of Chi that he is doing his utmost to clear up the situation in Shanghai, thousands of armed stragglers are still roaming the streets in the vicinity of foreign settlements.

Widespread looting is proceeding in the native city. So far there have been no disturbances in the French concession or international settlement, although stray bullets are still falling near their borders.

All rail service out of Shanghai has been cut.

The defeated Hupeh troops, in scattered bands, were even more of a menace than the victors. They were spreading terror as they looted in the native sections of Shanghai.

Strong guards have been established around the foreign quarter. The British ship Carlisle has been summoned to reinforce the present naval detachment at Shanghai.

PERSONAL NOTES

Miss Anne Morgan of 1636 North Verdugo road has returned from the south, where she enjoyed holiday festivities as a guest at Hotel del Coronado.

Reuben Gies arrived Saturday night from New York for an extended visit with his mother, Mrs. Catherine Gies of 823 North Brand boulevard, and other relatives in the city.

Miss Ida D. Meyers and Miss Carol Duncan of 1203 South Central avenue returned recently from a motor trip to Tulare, where they spent part of the holidays as guests of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Jones and daughter Martha of 322 East Dryden street were guests Saturday at the home of Mrs. Jones' sister, Mrs. I. S. Gorham, in Los Angeles, who was entertaining for her little son, George, the occasion being his fourth birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Webster Deffendorf of New York, who are wintering on the coast, and Mr. and Mrs. George Lovejoy of the Wilshire district, Los Angeles, were visitors recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Storer, 312 East Lomita avenue.

Miss Olive Ambrose of 254 Temple avenue, Long Beach, was a week-end guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gratias of 912 Osceola avenue; Miss Ambrose is a cousin of Mrs. Gratias and is a niece of Mrs. Mary Ellsworth, of Butte, Montana, who is the mother of Mrs. Gratias.

Mrs. Clara Fry of 409 Salem street entertained as dinner guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Fraunfelter, old-time friends from her former home near Cleveland, Ohio. The visitors made the trip west by railroad, shipping their motor to California. While touring the south they are making headquarters at Alhambra.

Mrs. J. C. Knorpp and Mrs. T. L. Young of Long Beach were in Glendale yesterday visiting E. B. Starkweather of 414 East Wilson avenue, who has been ill for some time and is growing weaker each day. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Morris of Huntington Park, and Mrs. Ada Greer of Fullerton, schoolmates of Mr. Starkweather's daughter, Mrs. Marie Gifford, also arrived yesterday.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Wed in Glendale

At a pretty home wedding solemnized Saturday night, January 10, 1924, at 8 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Hagen, 1045 Raymond avenue, Miss Grace Irene Burch of Boulder, Colo., became the bride of Boyd Twain Clemens of Glendale. Rev. Leo C. Kline, pastor of Central Avenue Methodist church, performed the double ring ceremony. An arch, artistically decorated with asparagus fern, was arranged in front of the fireplace. From the center of the arch hung a white bell. The couple stood under the archway for the ceremony. Mrs. Kline played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party entered the room. Thirty-five relatives and friends from Boulder, Colo., were present for the wedding. The bride wore an afternoon dress of tan crepe de chine and carried a bouquet of white rosebuds. Mrs. Earl Lively, of Lomita, acted as matron of honor, and Mr. Lively was best man. Mrs. Lively wore a dress of pale green georgette crepe. Mr. and Mrs. Lively are cousins of Mr. Clemens. After the ceremony buffet refreshments were served, and Mr. and Mrs. Clemens departed for Lomita, where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return they will make their home in Glendale. Mrs. Clemens recently came to Glendale from Boulder, Colo., and Mr. Clemens, who is also a former resident of Boulder, is employed by the Glendale Mixed Mortar Co.

KELLOGG TO TAKE PLACE OF HUGHES

Ambassador to England Will Become Secretary of State March 4

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The end of twenty years of public service in various capacities will come on March 4 for Charles Evans Hughes, now secretary of state in President Coolidge's cabinet. When President Coolidge is inaugurated as chief executive of the nation Secretary of State Hughes will again take up his private interests.

Frank B. Kellogg, a Minnesotan, who is now serving as ambassador to England, has been officially named as the successor to Secretary of State Hughes. Ambassador Houghton, now serving in Germany, representing the interests of the United States, will become envoy to England in Kellogg's place.

Secretary Hughes will resume his place in the old law firm in New York he reluctantly left nearly a quarter of a century ago to assume the duties of a public servant and official. Since that time Hughes has served almost continuously.

Official Japan Regrets Secretary Hughes' Quitting

By LUTHER HUSTON
For International News Service.

TOKIO, Jan. 12.—News of the retirement of Charles Evans Hughes as secretary of state of the United States was received in the official circles and by the Japanese press with utmost regret.

Secretary Hughes was regarded here as being friendly towards Japan while Frank B. Kellogg, who will succeed him is an unknown quantity, although his appointment was most cordially welcomed here.

The frank hope was expressed here today that Kellogg will carry out the Hughes policies.

"The retirement of Secretary Hughes is a loss to the entire field of diplomacy," Masanao Hanihara, former Japanese ambassador to the United States, told International News Service today.

"It is not easy," he said, "to find a man of his ability and character in any country. I personally regret his retirement and have the warmest regard for his personality, character and achievements."

Hochi Shimbun paid a high tribute to Secretary Hughes. "His retirement," this leading paper said, "is a cause for regret not only in the United States but world wide."

"Hughes was a real friend of Japan" the Jiji declared. "He is the highest type of statesman. His merits were immortalized in the work of the Washington conference."

The Japan Times said:

"Hughes stood as a bulwark between this country and the Japanese people of the United States and Japan is sorry he has resigned."

Theatre Subscriptions To Be Given Back

With the cancellation some few days ago of the working agreement between J. A. Menard, manager for Murphy Comedians, and the J. B. Brown Co., 219 East Broadway, it was announced this morning that all money paid by local theatre-goers for the construction of a Murphy theatre here would be returned to the subscribers at once.

Mr. Brown explained that all funds had been placed in escrow at the Federal Commercial Trust & Savings bank, subject to the actual construction of the theatre. The return of all subscriptions at this time is in accordance with the original agreement on the reverse side of all ticket books sold.

As an outcome of the cancelled agreement existing between the J. B. Brown Co. and the Murphy Comedians, it also became known that the J. B. Brown Co. has taken over the big tent on the Murphy site in Burbank and will continue to play high-class stock shows.

Kansas Governor and His Son Are Arrested

the Kansas law for soliciting a bribe.

The charges are based on Russell Davis' alleged acceptance of $1,250 when delivering a pardon from his father to a convicted forger. The man waiting for the pardon had witnesses listening in to the conversation he had with Russell, through a telephone system, it is said.

When Russell saw he was trapped, the alleged witnesses stated, he returned the money. Both Governor Davis and his son have declared that the executive knew nothing of the matter and that Russell "was trying to make a little money on the side."

Governor Davis and his son will be arraigned January 23. The date for their formal entering of pleas was set this afternoon immediately after the inaugural ceremonies for Governor Ben Paulen, which formally made Davis a private citizen.

Civic Bodies to Hear Traffic Expert Speak

Miller McClintock, traffic expert, formerly connected with Harvard university, will speak before members of the Citizens' Traffic commission, members of the City Council and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and other civic bodies, tomorrow noon at the Egyptian Village cafe. Mr. McClintock, who is now connected with traffic research work in Los Angeles, has been invited to speak in Glendale in behalf of the adoption here of the new traffic ordinance drawn up for Los Angeles. The Los Angeles Traffic commission, which will be represented by Clarence T. Snethen, executive secretary, has proposed that the new ordinance be adopted by all cities in the greater metropolitan district, in order to simplify the problems of auto drivers.

Open Forum Dinner to Honor Poet, Humorist

James W. Foley, poet and humorist, will be the main speaker at the January open forum dinner of the Chamber of Commerce to be held under the auspices of the City Council January 19. Other attractions are not ready to announce, according to Councilman C. E. Kimlin, who is in charge of arrangements. One feature will be the "largest collection of mayors" in Southern California, according to rumors, Mayor Spencer Robinson of Glendale will lead the procession of city executives.

Postmaster Ripley In Air Inspection Tour

Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson viewed sections of Glendale to which postal service is soon to be extended from a seat in an airplane yesterday. Rapid growth in a number of outlying sections has resulted in recommendations being made to Washington for extensions of service of these districts. In the belief that the extensions will be granted, Postmaster Jackson is making preparations for additional service.

Realty Board Prepares Newest Listing System

Detailed plans for the operation of the new multiple listing system within the Glendale Realty board will be worked out at the weekly luncheon of the board Wednesday at noon. With the details arranged, the board will be ready to put the new system into operation immediately. A large number of listings have already been received, according to John H. Klise, secretary.

Flood Control Confab Put Over to February

P. J. Hayselden appeared before the Los Angeles county Board of Supervisors this morning, as chairman of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce flood control commitee, and requested that discussion on the Sycamore canyon flood control plans be held over until February 16. His request was granted.

GROWING MINE PROPS

A South African coal mining company has planted 250 acres in trees with a view to their future use as mine props.

Determine Percentage Of Receipts for U. S.

is looked upon in diplomatic circles as the mouthpiece of Finance Minister Clementel.

"Our debt to America is purely a question of transfer," said L'Information. "It will remain unsolvable if the United States maintains its twenty-five year funding law and continues its high tariff and the prohibition of hygienic drinks.

"We are confident that America, who gave Great Britain 62 years and who contributed so much to the Dawes plan, will eventually reduce our debt to a minimum fraction of the present amount."

Plan Suggested

L'Information then suggested a plan for payment of the debt. This plan would provide that a portion of the German-Dawes receipts to France be assigned to America to be accredited to the French debt. This, L'Information pointed out, would reduce fully one-third the sum which France would have to pay America.

"If the United States would agree," the article continued, "to reduce the total French debt to America to four billion gold marks —present value—then we could assign to the United States 12 per cent of our percentage from Germany. Furthermore, we could guarantee a payment of one billion gold francs, which America would agree to leave deposited in the bank of France."

Instructs Envoy

The article proposed that England's share of the German reparations should be credited to the French debt to England. France would then assign to England 7 per cent of France's 52 per cent reparations. If this would not be agreeable to England then France should follow the terms of the Bonar Law plan.

Premier Herriot had an audience today with Emile Daeschner, recently appointed French ambassador to the United States. Daeschner was instructed regarding debt negotiations to be carried on in Washington.

Put Gasoline on, Fire; Seven Burn to Death

CALDWELL, N. J., Jan. 12.—Seven negroes, six members of the George Gootch family, and a woman boarder, were burned to death when a gasoline-fed kitchen fire exploded in their home today. Horace Jordan, another negro, was severely burned. The mother, after starting the blaze, ran out into the street to call for help, then returned and perished with her five children and the negress who lived with them.

The dead are: Mrs. Rosa Gootch, her three sons, Theodore, Jr., Samuel and Frederick; her two daughters, Agnes and Maria, and Colorine Jordan, of Atlanta, Ga., who was visiting the Gootch family.

U. S. Board Fixes Coal Car Supply to Mines

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The Interstate Commerce commission today reaffirmed its previous decision holding that the practice of railroads in assigning private cars and foreign line cars for railway fuel to bituminous coal mines in excess of the ratable share contemporaneously distributed to bituminous coal companies upon their lines which do not receive assigned cars, was unjust and unreasonable. The railroads were ordered to change their practice with regard to privately owned coal cars by March 1, 1925.

Patronage Row Sighted In State Judge Fight

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The patronage row over appointment of a federal judge for the northern district of California took a new turn today when telegrams were received at the White House urging that Clara Shortridge Foltz, first woman lawyer in California, be considered for the post if a woman were to receive the appointment. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney-general, is now understood to have a better than even chance for the judgeship. Mrs. Foltz, a Los Angeles attorney, is a sister of Senator Shortridge.

Houghton Favored as Successor to Kellogg

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Diplomatic circles here believe that Alanson B. Houghton, ambassador to Germany, will be appointed to succeed Frank B. Kellogg at the court of St. James. While it was thought that the British government would accept this appointment, it is understood that some of the "die hard" tories fear that Houghton is over sympathetic toward Germany.

Postal Workers Defeat Echo Park Ball Tossers

Glendale letter carriers defeated Echo Park letter carriers in a hotly contested baseball game at White Sox park on South San Fernando road Sunday. The final score stood 7 to 6. "Happy" Richards pitched for the locals with Bill Whitley on the receiving end.

CLEANERS IN SESSION

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—The eighteenth annual convention of the National Association of Dyers & Cleaners opened here today.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The general trend of stock prices was upward today, though irregular movements in the industrial stocks resulted from the desire of traders to take profits on the recent advances and the forward movements were confined to a small number of stocks in which the motors and oils dominated.

Definite country-wide demand for U. S. Steel stock developed as the result of the extremely bullish monthly statement of forward orders published at the close of Saturday's market. But traders were in no hurry to take profits on steels and bears were not inclined to sell. For that reason steel common was unusually active, as also were the independent steel shares, though prices were generally firm.

All of the so-called independent group, including General Motors, Fisher body and Dupont common were active and buoyant. General Motors sold in unusually heavy volume from 70, the opening price, to 73, for a gain of 4 points for the day and an advance of 9 points from the low of last week. Fisher Body, on which the dividend was doubled last week, jumped 15 points to 274⅞ and Dupont was up about 2 points to 145. Elsewhere the motor stocks were featureless.

The broad movement today was in the stocks of the independent oils. Speculative attention has turned to the oils for the double reason that few of the stocks in this group have participated in the rise in prices since November, while conditions in the industry and sentiment regarding the same, have shown a remarkable change for the better since the turn of the year. Cosden sold above 30 today on a heavy turnover, for the first time since its violent drop from around 38 early in 1924.

Stock sales today, 2,141,100 shares; bonds, $15,872,000.

CHICAGO WHEAT

By International News Service

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—All grains closed sharply higher today with the exception of the September oats future, which was off ⅛. May wheat advanced above $1.81, to a new high, and closed at $1.80¾. Wheat closed 1 to 4 cents higher. Corn was up 1⅛ to 1½ cents at the finish. Oats closed up ⅜ to ⅛ cent off. Provisions were influenced by grains. Packing and cash interests sold early, but offerings were absorbed by new investment buying which developed.

Musical Recital Given By Mrs. Buckham Pupils

Mrs. Lela M. Buckham presented a group of her pupils Saturday afternoon in a recital and class demonstration at her studio home, 332 West Lexington drive.

The musical program included: "In Hanging Gardens" (Davies), Bernice Miller; "Daddy's Waltz" (Rolfe), Rosamund Johnson; "Ballad, Op. 100, No. 15" (Burgmuller), Maude Edwards; "Novelette in E Minor" (Horvarth), Julia Benson; "Knight Ruprecht" (Schumann), Frances Malcolm; violin solos, "Loin du Bal" (Gillette) and "Menuet in G" (Beethoven), Helen Clotfelter, accompanied by Virginia Clotfelter; "Progress March" (Meyerbeer), Harold Fawcett; "Chariot Race" (Schmoll), Hewitt Lapham; monologue, "Too Hard Work," Rosamund Johnson; "Album Leaf' (Grieg), Kathleen Grey; "Back to the Cotton Fields" (Bilbro), "Waltz of the Forest Sprite" (Krug), "Spring Morning" (Loeschom), Virginia Clotfelter; "Studies" (selected), Harry Edwards; "Allegro from Quartette in F" (Mozart), Millicent Foulke; "Fur Elise" (Beethoven), Eldred Thompson.

During the class hour subjects presented were: Biography of Edward Grieg, with photographs; blackboard drill in note values; game of composers; photographs of prominent musicians and composers. Refreshments were served later. Each pupil has been asked to write six musical "wills" and won'ts" for 1925.

Christian Endeavors Hear Bible Study Talk

"How to Read the Bible Helpfully" was the theme of the weekly meeting of the senior intermediate Christian Endeavor society, held yesterday at the Presbyterian church. Marjorie Hart and Elsie Forsythe were leaders. D. L. Foster, head of the young men's work at the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, gave the first of a series of four Bible talks, based on sin and the impossibility of man working out his own salvation.

Howard L. Brown, superintendent of the organization, spoke on the Bible and its truths. Much enthusiasm was shown over the January attendance contest now in progress between the boys and girls. A "telephone talking" stunt was given by Spencer Jewell. The goal of seventy for the meeting was reached.

Evangelist's Advance Agent Plans for Meet

A special meeting of all Glendale ministers with Clarence L. Virgin, advance manager for John E. Brown, evangelist, has been called for Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Central Christian church. Mr. Virgin arrived in Glendale this afternoon. He also requests that H. L. Finlay, general chairman of the campaign, and E. E. Osgood, treasurer, be present at the meeting Wednesday morning.

Trustee's Sale No. 3643
NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

WHEREAS, by a Deed of Trust, dated April 23, 1924, recorded May 29, 1924, in book 3770, page 219 of Official Records of Los Angeles County, California, to which record reference is hereby made, Emma A. Ferguson did grant and convey the property therein and hereinafter described to the TITLE GUARANTEE AND TRUST COMPANY, as trustee, to secure, among other things, the payment of one certain promissory note, in favor of Clifford A. Cole and Bessie M. Cole, his wife as joint tenants, and other sums of money advanced and interest thereon; and

WHEREAS, said note has for valuable consideration been sold, assigned and duly endorsed and is now owned and held by E. R. Hubbard and Sue L. Hubbard, his wife; and

WHEREAS, there has been a default in the payment of the monthly installment of principal and interest due and payable on said note August 1, 1924, and all subsequent monthly installments of principal and interest, and by reason of such defaults, said E. R. Hubbard and Sue L. Hubbard, his wife, the owners and holders of said note and trust deed, in accordance with the provisions thereof, on to-wit, September 29, 1924, exercised their option and declared the full amount of the indebtedness secured by said trust deed immediately due and payable, there being the total sum of $2549.25 now due and unpaid; and

WHEREAS, in accordance with the provisions of Section 2924 of the Civil Code of California, said E. R. Hubbard and Sue L. Hubbard, the owners and holders of said note and trust deed, on October 1st, 1924, caused to be recorded in the office of the County Recorder of said Los Angeles County a notice of such default in the payment of principal and interest, and of their election to cause the property described in said trust deed to be sold, in accordance with the provisions thereof, to satisfy said obligation, which notice of default and election to sell was duly recorded in Book 4156, Page 222 of Official Records of said Los Angeles County; and

WHEREAS, said Trust Deed provides that, if there is default in the payment of any of the sums secured thereby, upon application of the holder of said note, the trustee shall give notice and sell so much of the property as shall be necessary to satisfy the indebtedness secured thereby.

WHEREAS, said E. R. Hubbard and Sue L. Hubbard, by reason of the default in payments as stated, has requested the TITLE GUARANTEE AND TRUST COMPANY to give notice and to sell said property, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to sell, to pay all the indebtedness secured and expenses incurred necessary to the execution of said trust.

NOW THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that the TITLE GUARANTEE AND TRUST COMPANY by virtue of the authority vested in it as Trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash in gold coin, on the 31st day of January, 1925, at the hour of 11 o'clock A. M., of said day, at the western front entrance of the Court House in the City of and County of Los Angeles, State of California, all the interest conveyed to it by said Trust Deed, in and to all the following described property, to-wit:

Lot Fifty-one (51) of Tract No. 4765, in the City of Glendale, County of Los Angeles, State of California, as per map recorded in Book 51, Page 44 of Maps, in the office of the County Recorder of said County.

Subject to encumbrance of record, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to pay the total amount of the principal, interest, advances, charges, and costs, including compensation to the trustee.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the TITLE GUARANTEE AND TRUST COMPANY, has duly authorized this notice, by the signature of its Vice-President, attested by its Secretary, who has affixed the Corporate Seal, at Los Angeles, California, this 2nd day of January, 1925.

(Corporate Seal)
TITLE GUARANTEE AND TRUST COMPANY.
By J. F. KEOGH, Vice-President.
ATTEST A. R. KILLGORE, Secretary.

WANTED!

Capable business man with from $5000 to $10,000 cash or collateral to aid in financing the continued expansion of a rapidly growing manufacturing and merchandising business in Glendale.

The man desired is one preferably over thirty years of age with a successful experience in sales management or business administration who must be quite capable of assuming responsibility and with the qualities of leadership well developed.

The industry inserting this advertisement is one which commenced operations on June 1st this year with one man, who without capital, friends or credit, and in spite of quiet times and the off season for his line, has in that short time evolved an incorporated industry doing business on a cash basis that now employs a permanent, ever-increasing payroll of thirty-four residents of Glendale.

This unusual record of growth and expansion has been accomplished without ostentatious advertising or promotion schemes and hot air, but, to the contrary, is the result of new, bright and intelligent merchandising ideas, several good formulas, manufacturing A-1 good goods, plus real service, co-operative effort and everlasting hard work throughout the organization.

The business is amply financed for present needs and can give references to satisfy the most exacting, including leading business houses in Los Angeles, as well as banks.

Having made a very satisfactory start in covering the whole of Southern California, this concern is preparing to open a branch in San Francisco on Feb. 1st, for the purpose of handling Northern California, besides which the foundations are being laid for the merchandising throughout the entire U. S. A. of a specialty which is having an immense local sale in California.

This necessarily brief advertisement opens the way for some intelligent man with abundance of ambition and initiative, plus an appetite for work, to secure a hard job involving plenty of toil and responsibility and offering as a reward a substantial interest in the early stages of what is speedily becoming an organization of magnitude and wealthy independence.

ONE KILLED AS LONDON IN FOG'S GRIP

Economic Losses Are Placed At $5,000,000; Criminals Operate at Will

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The city life of London was almost wholly disorganized today as the result of a thirty-six hour fog. Economic losses are estimated to have reached $5,000,000. One person is dead, scores were injured and criminal activities have greatly increased.

During the night bus and street car service was withdrawn. Many busses and private automobiles were left beside the curbs because they could not reach their garages. The police force was depleted because some officers could not reach their stations. Others could not locate their beats. As a result criminals worked unmolested in numerous districts.

Street collisions between motors and horse-drawn vehicles were frequent, one person being killed and dozens hurt. Train service was badly disarranged.

Whiting Ranch Setting For Hi-Y Boys' Outing

Boys of the Pioneer group of the Glendale Y. M. C. A. spent Friday night and Saturday at Whiting ranch, La Crescenta. The boys under the direction of Rex Kelly, "Y" executive, and Harry A. Lentz and Arthur W. Bennett of the Wilson school, left Friday afternoon. Saturday morning they enjoyed a hike to the top of the mountains in the vicinity, returning home late Saturday afternoon. Thirty-nine boys made up the party. Glendale Hi-Y boys will play hosts to officers of Pasadena Hi-Y club tonight. A banquet will be staged at the Pasadena building when officers of the Crown City club will be guests of honor. Warren S. Slater, "Y" physical culture director, will be the speaker of the evening.

Budget Takes Notice Of State Lawmakers

giving the governor control of that department.

Members of both Houses were looking to the announcement tomorrow of the standing committees. There has been the usual scramble this year for important chairmanships. Speaker Frank Merriam is understood to have practically completed his selections, although they will not be made public until tomorrow. He held a final conference with Governor Richardson on their personnel. Lieutenant Governor C. C. Young, who names the Senate committees, likewise has his list ready for presentation tomorrow.

California's vote for President Calvin Coolidge and Vice-President-Elect Charles G. Dawes were to be cast today.

The Assembly was to meet today at 1:30 and adjourn to attend the meeting of the thirteen Republican electors, who assembled at the capitol to formally record the state's presidential vote. Senate members were also to be present.

An interesting bit of gossip in connection with the forthcoming budget was the report that Mrs. Nellie Brewer Pierce, maker of the last budget, who has since left Governor Richardson's official family, will prepare another budget this year, unofficially, for purposes of comparison with that presented by the governor. This report was not confirmed.

'FOLLIES' COMEDY TENT SHOW BILL

Arline Francis Featured In Latest Offering on San Fernando Road

Arline Francis is featured this week in "Dolly of the Follies," a sprightly three-act comedy showing nightly at Toby Walters' tent theater, San Fernando boulevard opposite the Moreland factory. The curtain rises at 8:15 o'clock.

The plot of this comedy is novel. It deals with a girl who left a rural town and joined the New York "Follies," where she underwent a great transformation. After ten years she returns to her home town, still young and charming, and sets the place buzzing.

The natives in general are shocked by her strange metropolitan colloqualisms and mannerisms, but Toby Walters, featured as the farm boy, likes Dolly for all that and endeavors to transform his own sweetie into a Broadway model, silk-stockinged, short-skirted, bobbed-haired vamp. What Dolly finally does constitutes the big surprise of "Dolly of the Follies."

Typewriting can be taught by a new set of phonograph records, speed being included by lessons set to music.

Evangelistic Services Continued by Nazarene

An unusually large crowd attended the services held yesterday at the First Church of the Nazarene by Rev. Fred St. Clair. Converts were received at each of the three services. Owing to the demand of the people it has been found necessary to continue the evangelistic campaign for another week, this making the fifth week Rev. St. Clair has been here. The Bible readings will be held this week, beginning tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 o'clock and continuing each afternoon at the same hour, with the exception of Saturday. Services are held each night at 7:30 o'clock at 417 East Acacia avenue.

Members of the baseball club of the Knights of Columbus proved successful hosts Saturday night, when they entertained over forty couples at a dance in the K. C. hall at 330 East Lomita avenue. Music for dancing was furnished by the Euterpean orchestra of Los Angeles. Harry Manush was general chairman.

CITY SCHOOLS TO BE JAPAN'S MODEL

Official of Tokio Visits Glendale to Inspect Public Buildings

Architectural ideas embodied in the Glendale Union High school will be utilized in the construction of schools throughout Japan, and particularly in Tokyo, declares Shichiro Takizawa, a member of the Tokyo city assembly and head of the Takizawa Malleable Casting Co., located at 59 1-Chome Yanagiwara-Machi, Honjo-Ku, Tokyo Japan.

Mr. Takizawa is touring the United States inspecting school buildings to gather ideas for educational structures to be followed in building up the institutions razed by the earthquake and fire. He is a visitor in Glendale today and is being shown about the city by Mayor Spencer Robinson and City Manager V. B. Stone.

The distinguished visitor spent considerable time inspecting the Glendale Union High school, and later informed Mayor Robinson that the structure is the best of its kind in the United States, in his opinion.

Copies of the Development number of The Glendale Evening News and the New Year's issue will be taken back to Japan by Mr. Takizawa. These editions, he said, would give the Japanese people an idea of the growth and advancement of Glendale.

FRISCO HUNTS TALL, DARK BOMBER

Many Escape Death When Police Headquarters Are Wrecked

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12.—Every police agency in San Francisco was engaged today in a hunt for a tall man dressed in black who is believed to have planted the pioric acid bomb which exploded yesterday in the hallway of police headquarters.

He was seen leaving the telephone booth in which the bomb was planted a few moments before it exploded, by Police Captain John Lackman. That and the slender clue furnished by fragments of a bottle believed to have contained the acid in the bomb which bore the label of a local drug store, were the basis of the police investigation, but the motive of the bomber remained a mystery.

Only the fact that the rank and file of the detective bureau arrived on time and the higher officials were late, prevented a loss of life. Around 10 o'clock Sunday morning the corridor of the hall of justice is usually thronged with detectives and officials arriving for morning conferences. This apparently was known to the bomber, who timed the death machine so that it would explode at 10:05. There was a minute or two delay and it exploded at 10:07. At that time the hallway was clear.

Work of Expert

The fact that Police Sergeant William Malberg did not have a nickel saved his life. He paused at the booth to telephone a few seconds before the explosion, and finding he had no change, went to a nearby office to secure the necessary nickel.

The bomb was placed within twenty-five feet of the door of Chief of Police Daniel O'Brien's office. The bomb, work of an expert, was constructed of a length of two-inch pipe which had been filled with about thirty cartridges of 32 calibre, so arranged to be detonated and scattered by a heavy charge of black powder. A dynamite cap was set off by the pioric acid, causing the powder charge to explode. The effect was to spray the entire corridor with death and few would have escaped had the hallway been filled. The explosion tore a hole through the heavy wall of the building, wrecked the telephone booth, shattered all of the glass in the corridor, wrecked a steam radiator and spattered the wall with lead.

NOTICE TO ALL

MURPHY FANS

and all interested in the

MURPHY COMEDIANS

WE SINCERELY REGRET that after a hard fought struggle, after freely spending time, energy and money, it has become impossible to consummate business negotiations with the Murphy organization to construct the once-proposed theatre building in Casa Verdugo. Contracts, plans, blue prints and a lot of hard work are now only regrettable memories.

TO THE MANY who purchased advance tickets in book form to help finance the proposed theatre, we wish to state that we appreciate your faith in us, your confidence being shown by the large sum of money we collected. This money is now in escrow at the Federal Bank, corner of Wilson and Brand, in Glendale. Every dollar you paid bespoke your desire and expectation for a large fine building on the former site of the Murphy Tent show. Your money will be cheerfully refunded by Mr. Llewellyn of said Bank.

But, Listen To This!

Through a combination of fortunate circumstances, we are now the owners and managers of probably the largest tent theatre in the world and have the biggest and best entertainment ever offered before at the low popular prices of 30c for adults and 10c for children. Our 100-foot stage and huge auditorium, capable of seating 2500 people, permit us to give the very best in drama, vaudeville, burlesque and other high class entertainments. We are not exaggerating when we state that Herbert Walters, recently from Kansas City, is second to none as a "Toby" comedian. As specialty and vaudeville actors he and his company are the best. And we have a highly trained girls' orchestra consisting of seven pieces. Aside from regular entertainment, every Tuesday and Friday we give a free dance after the show on our big stage. On Wednesday night a big old-time country store and other features will add to the fun and frolic which our big theatre will offer.

The following coupon is an invitation to every Murphy fan to attend our show and be convinced. Just clip the coupon and hand it in at the Box Office any time during month of January. Bills change Sunday and Thursday.

Brief Session Hinted By State Lawmakers

Senator Charles H. V. Lewis of Los Angeles asking three additional cabinet members, which have little relevance to the state's actual needs.

One bill, introduced by Senator Herbert Slater, provides an appropriation for painting the executive mansion. The biennial budget, it was predicted, will quite generally satisfy the needs of the various departments.

Reapportionment will be one of the big issues again this session and properly handled by a united group there is every reason to believe something tangible in the way of redistricting will result. A spirit of fair play in this, as well as the highway and agricultural programs is essential, everyone agrees, for the ultimate good of the state as a whole.

Efforts of Los Angeles to gerrymander its local political situation; efforts of San Francisco to thwart appeals to reason; and efforts of the "cow counties" to control the state, should be discountenanced and the general prosperity of commonwealth promoted to the best of the legislators' ability.

Highway Construction

Revenue for highway construction is one of the hardest nuts California has to crack at the present time. Recommendations by the Committee of Nine is awaited, although it is pretty definitely assured an increase in gasoline tax has little chance of becoming a law. Appropriations for forest fire prevention, pest control and capital improvements such as institutional buildings, will be sought.

Governor Richardson neither controls the Legislature this year, nor does he need its support particularly, for while he has "panned" the newspapers quite generally for not supporting his administration, he is not quarreling with department chiefs, if he can help it, and to paraphrase "All's quiet on the Potomac," it might be said:

"All's serene on the Sacramento."

Whether that serenity will be disturbed remains to be seen.

Postoffice Equipment For Verdugo Arrives

Stamp supplies and other equipment for the Verdugo postoffice arrived in Glendale today so that operation at the new office may be commenced immediately. Postmaster Emil Busch has all other arrangements for the opening arranged and only awaited the arrival of the stamps and supplies from Washington, according to Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson of Glendale, who has assisted in the establishing of the new unit at Verdugo City.

Its inventor has patented a device intended to shape human lips into any desired form.
